'LOST BATTALION' IS GIVEN DAY TO SURRENDER; JAPANESE WILL DISREGARD DANGER TO AMERICANS

Roosevelt Centers Budget Study on Need of Poor

HOPES TO BOOST PAY OF 40 MILLION ARE EMPHASIZED

President Says Speculation on Revision of Profits Tax Fails To Consider Assisting Large Submarginal Third of U. S.

CONFERENCE HELD WITH MORGENTHAU

National Youth Administrator Ordered to Survey Professions, Find Which Ones Are Overcrowded.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 29.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, starting a series of conferences on budget balancing today, placed great emphasis on his hopes for increasing the income and purchasing power of a third of the population he said were living sub-standard.

He said at a press conference that the wages and hours and surplus crop control measures, principal items of business of the special session of congress meeting November 15, were steps planned to lift purchasing power.

At another point, he said that newspaper stories speculating on possible revision of the capital gains and undistributed surpluses taxes had omitted reference to that portion of the population with little to live on.

40,000,000 in Need.
Particularly, the President added, the speculation omitted mention of increasing the purchasing power of 30 to 40 million persons who lack a decent standard of living now.

The President talked to newsmen a short time before beginning an evening conference with Secretary Morgenthau and Undersecretary Magill, of the treasury, on the budget.

They studied ways and means of making the treasury's books balance in the quiet of the President's family home and Mr. Roosevelt, answering a question, said beforehand that taxes would be among 50 subjects that probably would be discussed.

Daniel W. Bell, the budget director, will come here Monday for another budget conference.

Survey of Professions.
Before his meeting with the treasury officials, the President called on Aubrey Williams, youth administrator, for a nationwide survey on what trades and professions are overcrowded.

The survey would be for guidance in training young people in the future. Mr. Roosevelt made the request of Williams, after an informal meeting with national, regional and state directors of NYA. He shook hands with some 50 officials, talked with several

Hoot-Owl Stages Aerial Circus for Atlantans

Atlanta shoppers were treated to a new kind of thrill yesterday afternoon when this hoot-owl invaded the downtown area and demonstrated his aerial activities. He was first sighted on the third floor of the Ansley hotel. When The Constitution photographer arrived, he had flown to the ninth floor of the Rhodes-Haverty building, shown above at left. The close-up of "Hootie," above at right, was made after he came back to the third floor of the hotel.

Shoppers are shown as the cameraman snapped their photos between the gyrations and flights of "Old Man Owl" as he did his stunts between the Ansley and the Rhodes-Haverty building.

NEW JURY ASKED TO PROBE RACKETEERS

Outgoing Body Asserts Bribery Is Worst Form; County Pay Scale Hit.

A call for the incoming grand jury to "continue investigation of all racketeers, special attention being given to the subject of graft among law enforcement officers," was made yesterday by the retiring September-October grand jury in its final presentation.

"Bribery is the worst of all forms of crime, especially when it applies to an officer, sworn to the discharge of his duty," the presentments said.

The retiring jury specifically requested that the incoming jury be authorized to investigate the county pay scale.

RAILROADS VOTE TO ASK INCREASES

General Upward Revision of Rates Sought To Meet Higher Expenses.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The nation's major railroads today voted to seek increases in freight and passenger rates calculated to boost their annual income by $508,000,000.

The Association of American Railroads decided to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to authorize a 15 per cent hike in all freight charges except those on "coal, coke, lumber, fruits, vegetables and sugar, for which certain maximums will be asked in each instance."

The organization of all Class 1 carriers also elected to petition the ICC immediately for permission to advance coach fares in the eastern district from the current 2 cents a mile rate to 2 1/2 cents basis to 2 cents a mile.

DRIVE LAUNCHED TO COLLECT TAXES UPON INTANGIBLES

Amounts Due Over 7-Year Period May Reach as High as $100,000,000, It Is Believed as Rivers Announces Campaign.

SECURITY OWNERS IN COUNTIES BARED

Drive To Center on Out-of-State Investments, Governor Stresses, Making Confiscation Threat

Contending that hundreds of Georgia homes and farms as well as household goods have been sold for taxes while hundreds of millions of dollars worth of bonds, notes and other securities have escaped payment, Governor Rivers yesterday launched an intensive drive to collect seven years' back taxes on the intangible properties.

The Governor said he did not know the value of the stocks and bonds involved nor the amount of taxes alleged to be due the state. However, over the seven-year period, a total of 30 mills has been levied. Various reports at the capitol said that the amounts due the state and its subdivisions might run as high as $100,000,000.

In announcing the campaign, Governor Rivers indicated that securities on which tax payments are not made may be confiscated, stressing the fact that the drive centers on out-of-state investments.

Tax-Dodgers.
"These holders of intangible out-of-state investments claim they will be confiscated," the chief executive said. "They do not seem to be interested in the fact that they have been dodging taxes all the while and forcing confiscation of private property and other visible property by exorbitant tax rates."

The Governor said that county tax commissioners and collectors in more than half of Georgia's 159 counties had not reached his desk. He declined to say in advance of receipt of the list what he would do when he receives it.

Homer T. Howard, tax commissioner of DeKalb county, said that he had received a "small list" from the Governor.

CHEST CAMPAIGN IS $200,000 SHORT

$37,442 Subscribed Friday; LeCraw Says Workers Must Be Insistent.

Concern for the thousands dependent upon the 33 Community Chest agencies for needed services sent workers in the fifteenth annual campaign into the final stage of the drive Friday, still more than $200,000 short of the minimum need.

Subscriptions pledged Friday totaled $37,442, raising the total pledged to $272,014. The minimum need to be met is $474,070.

The campaign will be closed officially Tuesday night at a final rally of workers.

"What activity will take place beyond that date will depend upon the outcome of that report," Harry Sommers, campaign chairman, told the workers. "We simply can't turn away the people who are looking to us to provide the things they can't provide for themselves—food, clothing, medical care, and all the other services which the Chest agencies give."

The principal speaker at Friday's meeting was Roy LeCraw, campaign chairman in 1929, and a worker in the advance gifts' division this year.

'Lost Battalion' Defies Japanese in Ruins of Chapei

While their comrades have retreated from desolated Chapei, a typical section of which is shown above, the Chinese "Lost Battalion" still proudly holds out against the Japanese. "Shed your last drop of blood, fulfilling your sacred duty," General Sun Yuan-liang urged the battalion in a message yesterday. "I and your comrades salute you!" he said. General Sun is commander of the crack 88th division which includes the "Lost Battalion." The men are stationed in a large warehouse near the area held by United States marines. Japanese threatened to blast out the Chinese tomorrow unless they surrender.

DEADLOCK PERILS NEUTRALITY PLAN

Red-Fascist Impasse Over Belligerency Issue Blocks British Scheme.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The subcommittee on nonintervention ended another bitter five-hour session tonight with a deadlock between Communist Russia and the Nazi-Fascist front of Germany, Italy and Portugal blocking agreement on Great Britain's plan to withdraw foreign volunteers from Spain.

The plan was accepted in its entirety by Britain, France, Belgium, Czechoslovakia and Sweden at today's session. Russia accepted it with reservations of the granting of belligerent rights to the Spanish warring parties. Germany, Italy and Portugal accepted without reservations, but on condition of unanimity.

Unanimity Impasse.
The deadlock was on the question of unanimity.

The plan envisages, besides the withdrawal of foreign soldiers from the Spanish armies, the granting of belligerent rights and restoration of land and sea supervision to insure nonintervention.

Ivan M. Maisky, Soviet ambassador, abstained from voting on the belligerency issue in what Lord Plymouth, chairman of the subcommittee, and France's Ambassador Charles Corbin said was a desire "not to hinder the work of the committee."

This, however, did not break the impasse.

Subcommittee Adjourns.
German Ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop led the Nazi-Fascist front in an unexpected about-face from its stand at the last meeting and insisted that abstention from voting was tantamount to a refusal to accept the plan and that acceptance must be unanimous or the plan would break down.

The subcommittee adjourned until next Tuesday. The main committee of 27 nations is scheduled to meet on Wednesday.

At the later meeting Lord Plymouth proposes to ask the main committee's approval of the British plan as well as its authority to seek approval of the plan by the Spanish government and the Insurgents.

Wheel Stuck, Aerial Liner Lands Safely

Carrying 13 Persons, Big Ship Makes Perfect 1-Point Landing.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 29.—(AP)—An American Airlines transport, with damaged landing gear, circled Newark airport for an hour and a half this afternoon while eight men and five women on board wondered whether they would land safely or be broken to pieces.

Through all those 90 minutes, while airport attendants, police, firemen and ambulance crews waited anxiously on the ground, Pilot B. C. (Dinty) Moore, of Chicago, and his co-pilot, Kenneth Case, of Marshfield, Mo., tried desperately to lower a jammed landing wheel.

It was no use, and so as everyone held his breath, Moore, a veteran of 12 years of flying, brought the ship down in a perfect one-wheel landing, rolled across the field for 600 feet without damage to plane, crew or passengers, and modestly shrugged his shoulders.

"We all knew there was trouble," said one of the passengers, Fred Lamscheid, of Royal Oak, Mich., "and we wondered why we didn't land and get it over with."

Moore and Case became aware of trouble when they shot in on schedule and their wheels touched the ground. The plane bumped heavily and Moore sent it into the air swiftly. The passengers, too, were appalled then that something was amiss. They remained calm, one and all said afterwards.

Moore and Case took turns jerking at the retractable landing gear lever. One wheel moved freely, the other stuck midway as they tried to bring it into place.

Finally, Moore decided to take a chance. He swooped low, came nearer to earth, cut the throttle and carefully landed on the jammed wheel and the tail wheel. The ship tilted slightly, kept its balance and rolled away to a safe stop on the far side of the field.

FRANK BIRD SEIZED BY G-MEN IN OHIO

Wife, Baby With Gangster; Brother, Wanted, Thought To Have Fled.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Cleveland police announced they captured Frank Bird, nationally hunted gangster, and his wife, here tonight. Bird was captured at the home of his wife's parents without a shot being fired.

Federal agents had surrounded the house. They had been maintaining constant watch in the neighborhood.

An auto drove up in front, police reported, and Bird and his wife and baby got out and walked into the house. The federal men closed in and he surrendered.

Another man left the auto and ran, making good his escape, officials reported.

Bird is one of the notorious Bird brothers who have been at the head of the government's wanted list since their escape from the Cleveland jail a few weeks ago. His brother, Charles, was believed by officials to have been with him.

A third member of the gang was James Widmer, who was captured October 15 in Philadelphia by police as he was driving a stolen car. The Bird gang escaped from county jail at Cleveland September 23, 1937, in a daring armed break.

Their speeding car struck a woman pedestrian, killing her. Frank Bird is a convicted murderer and Charles was serving a 10-year term.

La Guardia To Win in New York, Reading in Detroit, Poll Indicates

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director Institute of Public Opinion.
NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—With most observers agreed that next Tuesday's election in 15 states will provide a hint of the way the national political wind is blowing, surveys of the American Institute of Public Opinion indicate the winners of the two most interesting mayoralty contests—in New York and Detroit.

Patrick H. O'Brien, CIO-incorporated candidate for mayor of Detroit, is trailing his more conservative opponent, Richard W. Read, in a special Institute survey conducted in connection with the Detroit News. Semi-final returns give Reading a 2-to-1 lead.

Detroit's election is attracting national attention because the O'Brien candidacy represents one of the CIO's most ambitious bids for political power.

GEORGIA LIBRARIANS URGED TO MAKE USE OF COMMISSION AID

Mrs. John K. Ottley Sr.
Terms State Body Authoritative and Flexible.

Mrs. John K. Ottley Sr., of Atlanta, chairman of the Georgia Library Commission, yesterday urged Georgia librarians in convention here to make greater use of the commission's facilities in their work throughout the state. She was addressing Georgia Library Association delegates at the Georgian Terrace hotel. Approximately 175 were in attendance.

"Chief importance of the commission lies in two factors—it is authoritative and flexible," Mrs. Ottley said.

More Books Needed.

Southern people must be convinced they need more books in libraries than automobiles on highways, William T. Polk, president of the Citizens' Library Movement of North Carolina, told the delegates. He said:

"The south needs more public libraries and the only efficient way to get them is to convince the people of the great need. Some years ago in a survey of library resources I learned that in four southern states there are more automobiles than books in the libraries. The south must do something about this need."

Abit Nix, Athens attorney and member of the board of regents of the University System of Georgia, declared for state aid for libraries the same as for schools. He added:

"Crime would be lessened if there were more libraries. Children must be educated and it cannot be done in the schools alone. They need libraries."

Hartsfield's Welcome.

Mayor Hartsfield welcomed the 175 delegates to the city and Miss Sally M. Akin, president of the association, outlined the "Purpose of the Conference."

At the luncheon, Governor and Mrs. E. D. Rivers were guests and a letter from Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt to the delegates was read.

At the speakers' table were Miss Beverly Wheatcroft, secretary of the Georgia Library Commission; Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent; Mrs. Rivers, Angus Fletcher, director of the British Library Information, New York; Mrs. Ottley, Governor Rivers; Miss Akin, president of the association; Polk; Miss Tommie Dora Barker, dean of the Emory University library school; Nix; Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state WPA director; Miss Emily Woodward, Vienna, past president of the Georgia Press Association, and John Paschall.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood, of federal court, spoke at the convention dinner last night. Other speakers were Dr. W. G. Perry, of Georgia Tech, and W. S. Couch, of the University of North Carolina.

JUNIOR LIBRARIANS ELECT ATLANTAN

Junior librarians of the state elected Miss Marella Walker, of Emory University, president, at a luncheon meeting yesterday at which Giles Robertson, of Emory University library, was principal speaker.

Robertson outlined the work of the newly organized junior librarian group.

Other officers selected were: Miss Lullie Henderson, of Armstrong Junior College, Savannah, and Annie Mayes, Mercer University, Macon, as vice chairmen. Miss Isabel Erlich, of the Carnegie library of Atlanta, secretary-treasurer.

Georgia Library Association Is Feted at Convention Luncheon Here

Seated at the speakers' table yesterday at a luncheon given members of the Georgia Library Association were Mrs. Sally M. Akin, president of the association; Governor Rivers, Mrs. John K. Ottley, chairman of the Georgia Library Commission, and W. S. Couch, of the University of North Carolina. Addresses were made by W. T. Polk, president of Citizens' Library Movement, and Abit Nix, Athens.

DRIVE IS LAUNCHED TO COLLECT TAXES

the state capitol and is working on it.

"We were successful several years ago in getting most of our intangibles on the tax books," Commissioner Howard said. "However, if the state furnishes us with any that we do not have we will do our best to collect the taxes just like we do all levies."

Inasmuch as in some counties the state and county levies run as high as 50 mills for each year, it was pointed out that if the taxes are collected over the seven-year period their owners will have to pay 350 mills on each $100 worth of intangible property.

As far as veteran officials and employees at the capitol could recall, the Rivers drive is the first attempt ever made to collect taxes on intangible properties.

It was learned that the state revenue commission, with the approval of the Governor, has entered into a contract with John Armistead, Atlanta tax investigator, to furnish the commission with information regarding the ownership of stocks and bonds. It was on information furnished by Armistead that the drive got under way.

Amendment Approved.

At present Georgia levies a 5-mill tax on intangible properties, the same as on real or ad valorem property. However, taxes are paid on only a small portion of the intangibles. In the June 8 general election the voters approved a constitutional amendment giving the general assembly authority to classify property for taxation, the amendment being designed to permit a lower rate on intangible property.

Discussing the drive yesterday Governor Rivers indicated that he would ask a different classification for stocks and bonds on out-of-state properties from those within the state.

The full text of Governor Rivers' announcement follows:

"It is estimated that 90 per cent of the intangibles owned in Georgia represent investments outside the state of Georgia. The physical properties which these investments represent, being outside our borders, are not subject to ad valorem taxation.

"This class of investors simply

Husband Finds Bride of Month Really His Sister

"For years we have been letting these intangible holders take profits from our business, send them off and escape taxation. At the same time we have been taxing out of existence the little homes and household and kitchen furniture of our people."

"The people have voted to reverse this thing—that is, to exempt homes representing investments in Georgia and tax the intangibles which, for the most part, represent investments outside Georgia."

"If these intangibles that represent outside investments are put on the tax digests, they will more than offset what is taken off by the exemptions of homesteads and furniture."

"It has been said that we cannot reach these intangibles and make them pay a tax. The lists obtained and sent out furnish very substantial evidence we can reach them if our taxing authorities have the courage to do it."

"It has been said that to tax them will drive them out of the state. The fact is that the money these intangibles represent already has been voluntarily placed outside the state, and if we cannot get taxes on it, then it is better that the people who hold them—the people who continue to live and do business in Georgia and constantly take more profits from our people in turn to send these profits away and pay no taxes—should themselves move to the sites of their investment and leave the field of profit taking to those who will invest profits here at home in developing Georgia industry."

"Of course, the 10 per cent of intangibles invested in Georgia enterprises represents physical property subject to ad valorem tax in Georgia as visible property."

Investor Reaps Profit.

"The class of investor reaps profit in Georgia and in turn puts the profit back in helping develop Georgia industry. They constitute a very desirable class of investor. "It is our purpose when the assembly meets (next month) to enact an intangible law that will encourage investments in Georgia stocks and bonds."

"These holders of intangible, out-of-state investments claim they will be confiscated. They do not seem to be interested in the fact they have been dodging taxes all the while and forcing confiscation of private property and other visible property by exorbitant rates."

"Local authorities have an opportunity through these lists furnished them to collect taxes honestly and legally due from these people."

SAVANTS GATHER TO STUDY QUINTS

250 To Investigate Controlled Environment.

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The Dionne quintuplets played second fiddle for a moment today to a new set of twins, on the eve of a scientific meeting to hear reports on the quint's progress.

The occasion was a meeting of Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, the country doctor who ushered the five famous sisters of Callander into the world, and his younger brother, "Bill," who had just assisted at the birth of twins.

Two hundred and fifty psychologists and child guidance experts of two nations arrived for the conference.

Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne, now 3 years and 5 months old, are the first quintuplets for whom scientists ever assembled.

How they have progressed mentally, socially, emotionally and in health and language—how the scientifically controlled environment in which they are being reared has worked out thus far will be told.

After the conference, the group will trek to Callander Sunday, to see the little wards of the King in their own nursery.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A marriage annulment brought to light today a month-old secret marriage between a brother and sister in which neither was aware of the blood relationship until three days ago.

The petition on which the marriage was annulled in Wright county circuit court set forth this story:

Ben Ipock, now 23, and his sister, Mary Lee, 21, were placed in a children's home in 1918 after the death of their mother. The girl was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Ben Williams and the boy was reared by Mr. and Mrs. Sid Yocum. They took the names of their foster parents and grew up without knowledge of each other's whereabouts.

Her investigation proved the two brother and sister, and the marriage was annulled yesterday.

heroic stand" of the "do-or-die" unit of the crack 88th division.

He warned all residents living in the International Settlement near the sector and the American and British defense units in close proximity to take precautions to avert possible casualties and damage.

Midnight Tangle.

Rear Admiral Honda did not disclose exactly when the Japanese planned to take action against the battalion if it would not surrender but inferred the deadline would be after midnight tonight so non-combatants might move out of the danger zone.

British surgeons meanwhile fought to save the lives of Rifleman Jack McGuire and Robert Delaney, seriously wounded by Japanese bombardments west of Shanghai yesterday in which three British soldiers were killed. One other soldier was injured.

Scattered fires broke out during the night on the north side of Soochow creek, destroying the Isis theater which had been one of the few almost whole buildings in the embattled area.

Despite an intensive three-day Japanese bombardment by warplanes and artillery which reduced Nanziang to ruins, Chinese authorities reported the left wing of the Chinese army still was holding on and keeping the Japanese at bay.

Nanziang is northeast of Shanghai.

Three Britons Killed.

The bombardments in which the three British soldiers were killed and three wounded brought deadly peril to Americans and other foreigners.

British military headquarters said the men, members of the Royal Ulster Rifles, were hit yesterday during a two-hour shelling by Japanese artillery of the Hungjiao area west of Shanghai, where Chinese forces had retreated from the old front north of the city.

Highly indignant British authorities protested vigorously to Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commanding Japanese naval forces at Shanghai. Anglo-Japanese relations, already bitter over the killing Sunday of another member of the Ulster Rifles by fire from a Japanese plane, became more tense.

Seven Chinese non-combatants were killed or wounded by the same shells that hit the Britons. Other Japanese projectiles exploded in the French concession, killing two Chinese and wounding seven.

Shell Fashionable Area.

Still other Japanese shells fell in the fashionable Columbia circle district on Shanghai's western river, where Consul General Clarence E. Gauss and other Americans have their homes. The homes of two British residents on Great Western road were hit but no casualties resulted.

Major General A. D. Telfer-Smollett, commanding British troops at Shanghai, telephoned protests to both Chinese and Japanese authorities and called personally on Admiral Hasegawa to enforce his protests.

Even before the soldiers' deaths, General Telfer-Smollett engaged in a long controversy with Japanese naval officers when two armed Japanese naval launches attempted to steam up Soochow creek, along the International Settlement border.

The British officer denied the Japanese right to operate on the creek and finally persuaded the launches to withdraw. The Japanese said they wanted to fight fires in Chapei, but foreigners believed they intended to blast at China's famous "Lost Battalion," still holding out against the encircling Japanese in a warehouse just across Soochow creek from the sector held by United States marines.

nese naval officers when two armed Japanese naval launches attempted to steam up Soochow creek, along the International Settlement border.

The British officer denied the Japanese right to operate on the creek and finally persuaded the launches to withdraw. The Japanese said they wanted to fight fires in Chapei, but foreigners believed they intended to blast at China's famous "Lost Battalion," still holding out against the encircling Japanese in a warehouse just across Soochow creek from the sector held by United States marines.

Hall Chinese Heroes.

In Chapei, newly captured by the Japanese, China's "lost battalion," a unit of the crack 88th division, continued to defy the Japanese from its warehouse stronghold just across the creek from the American positions. Over the warehouse fluttered a huge Chinese flag, sent the battalion by the admiring Chinese Chamber of Commerce.

Lieutenant General Sun Yuanliang, commander of the 88th division, sent the battalion this message:

"Shed your last drop of blood, fulfilling your sacred duty for the glory of the Chinese race, the Chinese republic, the Chinese revolutionary army. I and your comrades salute you. Although I have led my other men to new defense lines, my spirit and my heart are with you in Chapei."

Raiders Fire U. S. Mission.

An American Methodist mission was set afire and otherwise badly damaged by a raid of 20 Japanese planes on Sungkiang, 20 miles southwest of Shanghai. The mission's head said the attack would be reported in detail to Consul General Gauss soon.

Rifleman James and Rifleman Howard were killed and wounded in air raids on Sungkiang, Soochow and other cities. The American Seventh Day Adventist sanatorium in the Hungjiao district, surrounded by Chinese trenches, evacuated its patients and equipment into the French concession.

An American freighter, the Steel Traveler, was under fire at its dock at Pootung, across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai.

Japanese officers said it probably would be necessary to bombard Nantao, the native city immediately south of the French concession. American authorities, including Consul General Gauss, Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commanding the United States Asiatic fleet, and Brigadier General John C. Beaumont, commanding two regiments of United States marines here, expressed belief Shanghai was entering its most dangerous phase of the war.

The shells which killed the British soldiers apparently came from Japanese batteries in Chapei trying to hit Chinese positions in Hungjiao, residential and country-club suburb southwest of Shanghai from which some 40 Americans and many other foreigners had evacuated.

Killed in Dugout.

Rifleman William James and Rifleman Howard were killed and Rifleman Jack McGuire, Robert Delaney and Jack Campbell wounded when a shell scored a direct hit on a British dugout at the junction of Keswick and Brennan roads, at the northwest corner of the International Settlement. About 25 men were in the position.

Rifleman Joseph O'Toole was killed while playing an out-dutty glass of beer in the Honeyland bar opposite the entrance to Jessfield park. A shell landed in the street and hurled into the bar. A Chinese barmaid was wounded.

In North China the Japanese admitted their drive into Shansi province from the east had been stalled by stubborn Chinese resistance at Pingting, 65 miles east of Taiyuanfu, provincial capital.

In Kweisui, capital of conquered Suiyuan province, Mongol delegates in a "national assembly" under Japanese direction announced establishment of a new independent "Inner Mongolian nation" with Prince Tei, long associated with the Japanese army, at its head.

To Check Interior.

At Nanking, Rear Admiral E. J. Marquart, commander of the United States Yangtze patrol, announced he would go up the river aboard the gunboat Luzon to see how American citizens and property were faring in the interior, especially at Hankow, Wuhu and Kiukiang.

Chinese sources reported terrible punishment was inflicted by Japanese air raids on the residential areas of Sungkiang, Soochow, Nanziang, Wushu, Changshu and other interior cities. More than 100 native civilians were reported killed or wounded at each place.

The raid on Sungkiang destroyed a large part of the Southern Methodist mission which consists of two churches, the Susan B. Wilson School for Girls and a Chris-

LONDON IS ANGERED BY LATEST KILLINGS

Official Quarters Highly Indignant Over Japanese Attacks.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Increasing bitterness against Japan was evident in informed circles tonight as a result of the mounting list of British casualties attributed to Japanese attacks in the battle for Shanghai.

Official quarters showed great indignation at the killing of three soldiers of the Royal Ulster Rifles today while guarding the International Settlement.

Informed sources said these deaths, coming so soon after a British sentry was machine-gunned to death October 24, increased the resentment at the continuance of incidents despite Japanese assertions they were taking steps to prevent them.

The house of commons had adjourned for the week end before news of the latest casualties was received in London, but past incidents already had been made the basis of demands for a retaliatory trade boycott against Japan.

Laborite Tom Williams urged application of sanctions and the opposition liberal, R. T. D. Acland, caused a minor uproar when he demanded the Brussels conference on the conflict impose the boycott "if necessary supported by force."

CHINESE OBJECTS TO TOKYO PROPOSAL

PARIS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A high Chinese authority said tonight that acceptance of peace terms outlined yesterday by Japanese spokesmen would be betrayal of the Chinese people and the beginning of complete dismemberment of China.

The Chinese spokesman said both major proposals—temporary occupation of China's five north provinces by Japan and creation of an international zone about Shanghai—were out of the question from the Chinese point of view.

He said the idea of Japan's occupying the northern provinces—Hopeh, Chahar, Shansi, Suiyuan and Shantung—had been Japan's dream for years and constituted a major objective in Japan's program of expansion on the Asiatic mainland.

The proposal to create a neutral zone about Shanghai, maintained by international police, would be a violation of the administrative integrity of China, the spokesman said.

MANVILLE'S FOURTH IS GRANTED DIVORCE

"Darling," Marcellie Tells Newsman, 'I'm Not Thinking of Marriage.'

RENO, Nev., Oct. 29.—(UP)—Marcellie Edwards Manville, blond and fourth wife of Tommy Manville Jr., New York playboy, today obtained an uncontested divorce.

"Darling," she said to a newspaperman who asked her about rumors that she intended to remarry, "I'm not thinking of getting married again. I'm getting a divorce."

Rumors have indicated that Miss Edwards might marry Jay F. Carlisle, wealthy New York society leader, who is expected to divorce next week by Mrs. Margaret Moffat Carlisle, daughter of James A. Moffat, mining magnate.

Whether Manville, who recently put a full-page advertisement in all New York newspapers asking for a lawyer, would get married again was uncertain.

Miss Edwards was reluctant to talk about the settlement that Manville made, but it was supposed to be the flat payment of $200,000.

tian education center for adults. The Wilson school was set afire and almost completely destroyed, the residence of the Rev. W. B. Burke, demolished and much mission property was damaged.

The Rev. J. H. H. Beckman, of Lakeland, Fla., superintendent of the mission, who was in Shanghai, said one of the mission's Chinese workers came in to report all property was in danger of being destroyed by fires started by Japanese bombs.

Dead and wounded "were everywhere," the worker said, describing how 60 persons jammed into the mission's small dugout, stacked like sacks of grain.

He said the Japanese had raided Sungkiang almost daily for the past week, evidently searching out Chinese troop concentrations.

Flag No Protection.

Berckman said all the mission buildings flew large United States flags and added no Chinese troops had been quartered in the property.

That Americans and other foreigners in Shanghai faced the possibility of even worse events than happened last night was indicated by warnings of Japanese spokesmen here and in Tokyo that "further regrettable and unexpected incidents" might occur because of the difficulty of attacking Chinese positions in Nantao and Pootung.

This was believed to mean that the International Settlement and French concession, with their thousands of American and other foreign residents, literally sandwiched between the two armies, probably will come again into the line of fire.

The British defense line along the northern and western boundaries of the settlement was under fire most of the day, but the five-mile sector held by United States marines was comparatively quiet as the tide of major battle swung to the regions west of the city.

Tsingchao, where the Skvirskys were summering when the war broke out.

"These poor Chinese are pitiful to see in the streets, running frantically and aimlessly at the sound of gun rumblings in the distance," Mrs. Thompson said her daughter wrote. "False rumors are everywhere. The people think dragons are after them. Even the white people are scared to death."

Wiped out, a lucrative business in Shanghai destroyed, Skvirsky and his wife decided it time to come to America where the photographer has several offers, Mrs. Thompson said the daughter wrote.

Though always on the edge of the fighting, the couple wrote they had not been actually in the war zone.

The former Miss Thompson is a graduate of Girls' High school, class of 1926, after which she took an art course at the Art Museum and then became artist for an Atlanta sign company. She studied dancing and later opened a studio at the Erlanger theater. She sailed for Tokyo in 1933 with the Marcus shows and then entered a solo dancing tour of the orient and Far East. She was married in the American embassy at Shanghai.

So, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson are now counting the days until daughter will be home with the new son-in-law—they figure that to be about 25 days hence.

"That was such good news. Thanks you very much," Mrs. Thompson said.

300 ARABS JAILED IN MOROCCO PLOT

20 Nationalists Injured as Police Drive Them From Mosque.

FEZ, Morocco, Oct. 29.—(UP)—Three hundred Arab Nationalists were driven out of the mosque attached to Karouyne University late tonight by Arab police to be placed under arrest by soldiers of the famed French Foreign Legion.

About a score of the Nationalists, allegedly involved in an insurrection plot against the French, were wounded, six of them seriously.

Police used blackjacks to drive them out of the mosque, where they had barricaded themselves, and some hand grenades were exploded in the melee.

At least 300 arrests were made. Other disorders occurred in the streets at scattered points.

TWO OFFICERS FIRED FOR DRUNKENNESS, ONE WHILE WORKING

City Council Suspends Three Patrolmen For Sleeping While On Duty.

Two Atlanta policemen were discharged for drinking and two others were suspended five days each for sleeping on duty by the police committee of city council last night.

Dismissed was Patrolman P. W. DeFoor, found guilty of being drunk on duty at Lakewood park six weeks ago, and Patrolman A. L. Green, turnkey on the evening watch, found guilty of driving a car while intoxicated and having an accident.

Radio Patrolmen G. H. Williams and L. A. Puckett were suspended on recommendation of Chief Hornsby after admitting being asleep on duty in an alley off University avenue. They were found asleep by Lieutenant E. W. Ginn.

In 3-Way Crash. Gress, on vacation, was involved in a three-way accident at the intersection of Stewart avenue and University avenue October 20. He claimed A. E. Colbert, of 689 Cooper street, was driving the car rather than himself. Colbert so testified before the committee.

Radio Patrolman R. O. Williams and his partner, W. D. Evelyn, were first on the scene, but failed to determine who was driving the Green car.

Chief Hornsby recommended charges of neglect of duty be filed against Williams for not obtaining all necessary information and the committee voted to back the chief in the proposal.

Hornsby had recommended the discharge of DeFoor and Green.

Revoke Beer Permits. Mayor Hartsfield said he expected the grand jury to condemn "dives" in the city limits. The committee voted to revoke several beer permits.

Employment of retired policemen to patrol school crossings was proposed by Captain Jack Malcom, of the traffic department. Malcom said these men could be obtained for $10 a week and the $175-per-month men now used would be free to patrol downtown districts.

Parking Meter Proposals Are Pigeonholed Here

Parking meters will not be used on Atlanta's streets—at least not in the immediate future.

The police committee of city council filed last night all proposals from parking meter companies seeking contracts to install the machines, and Chairman G. Dan Bridges announced parking meters would not be considered again soon.

Representatives of the Mark-Time Meter Company, which had agreed to put in meters for the trial period at no cost to the city, withdrew their proposal last night after much opposition to the meters was expressed in council. Many merchants withdrew their names from the petition requesting the meters because of opposition from the public.

Business Executive Marks Birthday Today

J. J. Haverty, who celebrates his 79th birthday today, is shown above viewing a new portrait of his grandfather, Mr. J. J. Haverty, Sr. The painting was done by Raymond R. Nelson, of New York.

J. J. Haverty Reaches 79th Birthday Looking Ahead to Greater Atlanta

Civic and Social Leader To Observe Anniversary Today; Reviews Busy Life and Finds All Well With the World and His City.

J. J. Haverty, president of the Haverty Furniture Companies, Inc., art connoisseur and collector, and one of Atlanta's most versatile businessmen, yesterday approached his 79th birthday today in a retrospective and philosophical mood.

Sitting at his desk, from which he directs a $5,000,000 corporation, he related incidents and recalled characters of young Atlanta.

The civic leader reviewed a busy and productive life and pronounced himself satisfied.

Why, I haven't an enemy in the whole world," he said. "I have everything. My children and my 17 grandchildren are the finest people I know. I am satisfied. I am happy. I haven't missed a thing."

When newsmen entered, Mr. Haverty was admiring a painting of Miss Mary McGaughey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. McGaughey, of 2515 Habersham road. The painting was of his granddaughter and had just arrived from New York. Raymond R. Nelson, one of America's leading portrait artists, did the work.

"I knew Atlanta when it had a population of about 5,000 persons," he added. "Those were happy days, but these are too. This city grew from a little rural settlement until it is now one of the leading metropolises of America and is known and admired the world over."

"There were many great men in Atlanta in those pioneer days. High Ideals.

"There are great men and women in Atlanta now. The younger generation is fine. It is imbued with high ideals. It is pressing forward progressively. It will accomplish things which we of the older generation could not do. It has opportunities which we never dreamed of. The younger generation is doing all right. I'm not alarmed by the modern trend. The future of Atlanta is in good hands."

"I have no apprehension for the future of Atlanta."

Dr. A. W. Calhoun, Dr. Willis and Dr. John Westmoreland, Judge John S. Erskine, A. G. Rhodes, J. M. High, Judge Logan Bleckley, Jack Spalding, John Keely, George King, Paul Romare, Captain James English, John K. Ottley, Henry W. Grady, Judge Emory Speer, Judge William Felton and scores of other leaders in Atlanta's development were mentioned yesterday as Mr. Haverty relived his life in Atlanta for the past 78 years. They were all his intimates in various civic undertakings and enterprises. He admired and still admires them.

Reisman Slaying Reward May Be Hoisted $500

With $500 already posted for information leading to the capture of the negro slayers of Morris Reisman, Forsyth street haberdasher, the amount was expected to reach $1,000, the maximum allowed by law, Solicitor General John A. Boykin said yesterday.

Friends of Reisman turned over the $500 to him, Solicitor Boykin said, and added that he had written a letter asking Governor Rivers to add $250 as the state's share. Reisman's friends plan to ask the county commission to add another $250 to this amount, he said.

Reisman was shot last Saturday night in his shop in the Piedmont Hotel building. While college bands played outside and a football crowd milled over the streets, two negroes were telling Reisman to "stick 'em up." When he refused and ducked, they shot, ran out the door and were lost in the crowd.

REICH REFUSES BID TO 9-POWER TALKS

Russia Accepts Invitation to Brussels Parley on Oriental Conflict.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Germany today declined the invitation of Belgium to take part in the conference of signatories of the nine-power treaty scheduled to open at Brussels November 3.

A note to the Brussels government explained that Germany, not being a signatory nor a later adherent to the treaty, "sees itself unable to participate in deliberations over application of the agreement."

(In Moscow, Foreign Minister Litvinoff announced Russia had accepted an invitation to attend the conference because of her interest in Far Eastern affairs.)

Germany and Soviet Russia, also a non-signatory, were invited to join the powers which in 1922 signed the treaty guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China in seeking "amicable means" of ending the Chinese-Japanese war.

The German reply expressed "full appreciation of the endeavor to bring a speedy end to the lamentable conflict in east Asia by application of friendly means."

DIPLOMATS OPTIMISTIC OVER BRUSSELS TALKS

BRUSSELS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Diplomats today expressed belief there was still a good possibility the conference on the Chinese-Japanese war would evolve some acceptable peace plans despite Japanese and German refusal to participate.

Norman H. Davis, United States delegate to the conference, discussed Germany's refusal with Belgian Foreign Minister Paul Spaak and other officials at a luncheon given in honor of the American delegation by Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium.

F.D.R. FARM AIMS LAUDED BY GEORGE

3,000 Hear Senator at Harvest Festival at Experiment Station.

GRiffin, Ga., Oct. 29.—The Roosevelt administration is "sincere and courageous" in its efforts to help the American farmer, Senator Walter F. George told approximately 3,000 farmers gathered today for a harvest festival program at the Georgia Experiment station near here.

Though farm aid measures were passed by congress during the Hoover and Coolidge administrations, he pointed out, they were vetoed by those Presidents. The present administration, he declared, is the first ever to have attempted to give material aid to the farmer.

There are many people, Senator George said, who believe President Roosevelt has called the extra session of congress for the purpose of declaring war in the orient. "These rumors," he declared, "are utterly without foundation."

"American courage always has pulled this nation through in such crises," he said, "and it will continue to do so."

A cotton marketing quota based on acreage rather than poundage was advocated by Senator George, who declared there is "no hope of economic security or advancement" for farmers if the old cotton base is re-established.

"If the new farm bill calls for production control," he said, "I pledge myself unreservedly to work for an allotment to each farmer on a fixed and equal percentage of his cultivated land."

Girls, you have been waiting for perfection.

Well, the Fox theater is offering this week Errol Flynn in "The Perfect Specimen" and Joan Blondell is after his heart.

The story is that of a young man brought up by an aunt. He has never been kissed and Joan undertakes to show him about life.

Others in the cast are Hugh Herbert, Edward Everett Horton, Dick Foran, Beverly Roberts, May Robson, Allen Jenkins, Dennis Moore, Hugh O'Connell and James Burke. —C. S. unofficial blessing of the New Deal Administration through James A. Farley.

The balloting up to Thursday, October 28, showed LaGuardia receiving 66 per cent to 34 per cent for Mahoney. Last-minute shifts may alter these figures, however.

A victory for LaGuardia would write a new chapter in New York's political history. Heretofore no coalition party has succeeded in beating Tammany twice in succession for the mayoralty.

In the Detroit contest the special survey indicates a split in the labor vote.

Reading ran first in the recent primaries without any organized labor backing, but has since received the support of the AFL, whose own candidate, Smith, was defeated in the primaries.

The survey finds that the Smith voters, many of whom are AFL members, are going over to Reading in preference to the CIO candidate.

NEW JURY ASKED TO PROBE RACKETEERS

be instructed to take up the racket probe. Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy will organize and charge the new jury Monday.

Secret Board Asked.
Formation of a secret board of "inspection and control" within the city police department designed to ferret out grafting and inefficient policemen was also urged in the 43-page presentments.

To finance the board, it was recommended that "not less than $10,000 be placed in the hands of the chief of police to be used at his sole discretion in the employment of such investigators as he may deem necessary to clean up and maintain proper efficiency in the police department."

The board would be composed of ten men set up under direction of Mayor Hartsfield, Chief M. A. Hornsby, and the police committee of city council, the jury recommended.

County Salaries Too High.
Charging that "salaries of county employees are excessive and above the average paid by first-class firms in private business," the presentments urged formation of a "committee of department heads" with full responsibility for bringing salaries in line with average prevailing in private organizations.

The presentments were turned over to the court yesterday with Judge Virlyn B. Moore presiding. The jurors reported that 40 daily sessions were held and presented a total expense of $2,103. Highlights of the presentments were:

1. More rigid enforcement of state law and city ordinances regarding lotteries. Confiscation of lottery cars and evidence, the latter to be turned over to the chief of police and held by him until final disposal of the case.

2. Removal of all "points of crime," with reference to the "known congregating points for criminals"—which, as often as not, are centered in respectable communities.

Daily Reports.
3. That all city policemen on a beat should make a daily report in writing of suspicious characters on his beats, of any disorders "in and around poolrooms or other loitering places." This report should include, "in addition to suspected robbers, burglars and yeggmen, all types of criminals and potential criminals, also prostitutes and vagrants."

4. Creation of revocation of licenses and closing of any places which are apparently becoming the "spawning places of crime."

5. Dissolution of the "tax deed racket" in which "already overburdened real estate taxpayers" are paying further toll. Along with this, submission of a list of delinquent county taxpayers which might save a portion of commissions now paid "special tax investigators."

6. Stricter supervision of the county pay roll, with regard to "overpaid" county employees, at an estimated saving of $250,000 per year to the county.

Ellis Health Law.
7. Greater protection to the health of Fulton county residents by adoption of the Ellis health law.

8. Recommendation for an annex to be built onto the courthouse for the purpose of storing superior court records.

9. Commendation of Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby and asserted that 25 additional men are needed on the city police force.

10. Praise for the functioning of the solicitor general's office, and pointed out that additional men should be employed during special investigations.

In reference to the criminal court of Fulton county, the presentments pointed out that $50,000 in excess of the cost of operating the court had been turned over to the county in fines—in "direct contrast to the deficit of the municipal court of Atlanta."

Fine Interest.
The presentments charged the municipal court is over-staffed and that "salaries paid are too high." A change in the method of handling fines paid into the court in order to avoid any mix-up of interest on such fines with private fortunes of court attaches was also suggested.

An increase in the number of nurses at Grady hospital and enlargement of dormitories was urged along with recommendations for better fire protection.

Praising the work of the county police department, the presentments said the "efficiency of their work has been greatly increased by the use of radio."

The full text of the general presentments, covering every phase of activity in which Fulton county has a part, will be found elsewhere in this paper.

EX-ATLANTA POLICEMAN IS KILLED IN CHICAGO
J. R. Smith, 46, former Atlanta policeman, was killed yesterday in Chicago when he was thrown from a truck when it rounded a curve.

Other information about the accident was unobtainable. Smith, who had been a member of the police department here for about seven years, had been living in Chicago for the past two years.

The wife, a son, J. R. Smith Jr., both of Atlanta; a brother, Horace Smith, of Bartow, Fla., and two sisters, Mrs. H. B. Seymour, of Bartow, and Mrs. A. E. Beaver, of Chicago, survive.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Trio 'Little Game' Hunting To Win Circus Tickets

Anteaters at Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey circus are going to have a square meal Monday if all Atlanta children are as determined to take with them a half pound of ants as the Hammond trio. Two free tickets will be given every Atlanta child who will bring to Frank Braden, press representative of the circus, one-half pound of the insects by 1 o'clock Monday afternoon at the circus grounds. Above are Rose and Mary Hammond, five-year-old twins, as they lure the ants to the danger zone with all-day suckers, while Bobby, their brother, unearths an entire family of them in the backyard of their home at 60 Atlanta avenue. The ants are then thrust into the bottle and, presto! the capture is completed.

MRS. DISON KILLED BY AUTO INJURIES

Funeral Rites To Be Held Today at Capitol Avenue Baptist.

Mrs. Lila Dison, 65, of 525 Crew street, died at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning of injuries received Friday week when knocked down by an automobile at the corner of Richardson and Washington streets.

Her death marks the sixth traffic fatality within the city limits this month and the 49th since January 1.

Mrs. Dison was struck by an auto driven by Miss Adrienne Ellison, of 516 Lee street, S. W. She was taken to Grady hospital in an unconscious condition and remained unidentified for several hours.

Miss Ellison was charged with reckless driving. Trial was set for November 5.

Mrs. Dison was born in Atlanta in 1864, the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Mercer Green. Mr. Green was pastor of the Old Wesley chapel.

She was a member of the Capitol Avenue Baptist church and a charter member of the Baptist Tabernacle.

She is survived by her sister, Mrs. J. H. Hawes, with whom she lived.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Capitol Avenue Baptist church with Dr. W. H. Major officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery, under the direction of Awtry & Lowndes.

SCHACHT BALKED

Hitler Refuses To Permit Resignation.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The efforts of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht to create an accomplished fact by announcing he had ceased to be Germany's economics minister were disclosed today to have failed.

Chancellor Hitler, who was learned, has declined for the present to give Dr. Schacht his discharge.

At Hitler's command, Dr. Schacht must remain as minister against his own will, though the title appears to be an empty one since chancery circles admitted he has not been functioning in his post since August 11.

about their problems, but made no speech.

The President also received personal and official greetings from King Haskon VII of Norway through Dr. Halvdan Koht, foreign minister of that country. Dr. Koht and Will Munthe de Morgenstjerne, Norwegian minister to the United States, and Mrs. De Morgenstjerne were luncheon guests of the chief executive.

Views of "Haves."
The President made no direct comment on the speculation as to possible repeal or adjustment of present taxes on capital gains and undistributed surpluses, but said he wished to emphasize that the speculative stories were from the point of view of the people who have and not from the viewpoint of the sub-standard population.

He said no mention was made in the speculation of the taxes the substandard group must bear.

He expressed hope of great future increases in the income of the total population, saying that from $65,000,000,000 the national income probably would go on to $70,000,000,000 and might later continue to $90,000,000,000 or $100,000,000,000.

He said in that connection that a Labor Department study showed direct government action had increased the national income $2,500,000,000 this year as compared with last. A $1,500,000,000 item was eliminated from federal payments to citizens because there was no soldier bonus item on the year's budget. The remaining $1,000,000,000 cut was due to a decrease in the money the government made available for relief purposes.

INSURANCE PLOT JURY LOCKED UP FOR NIGHT
MEDIA, Pa., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A jury deliberating the fate of Albert R. Knight, 56, on charges of arson and attempted murder, had reached no agreement shortly before midnight and was locked up for the night.

Knight, whom the state contends set fire to his house in an attempt to murder his children for $120,000 insurance, sat in the court room throughout the evening with his children, Ruth, Susan, Mary and David.

O'HARA APOLOGIZES TO IRATE JURIST
Rhode Island Publisher Was Cited for Contempt.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The Providence Star-Tribune today apologized to a superior court judge in a statement signed by Publisher Walter E. O'Hara.

Meanwhile, federal authorities moved toward an investigation of asserted political donations by the Narragansett Racing Association, which O'Hara heads.

The apology was made after Judge Charles A. Walsh requested that the newspaper show cause why it should not be held in contempt for an article which the judge said was not a "statement of fact."

In explaining the story, Publisher O'Hara said it was "written . . . under stress . . . later was found to be erroneous . . . and was killed in its later editions."

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 30, 1937.

Not only for immediate benefits, but for the sake of generations to come, the proposal to convert Atlanta's historic battle sites, where conflicts so vital in the outcome of the War Between the States were fought, into a national park should receive favorable consideration from the authorities concerned.

Sponsored by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, the Atlanta Historical Society, the U. D. C. and other groups, a movement has been underway for some time to induce the federal government to undertake this project.

The most recent effort was a conference in Washington, held Thursday between a group of Atlantans and the advisory board on historic sites, monuments and national parks.

In the Battle of Peachtree Creek soldiers on both sides represented 27 states. To every American, especially to those whose forefathers fought and, many of them, died on that battlefield, the area is a site of sacred memory. Other conflicts included in the national park proposal are the Battle of Atlanta and the struggle at Ezra Creek.

The far-reaching interest created by the publication of Margaret Mitchell's novel of Atlanta during the war of the sixties demonstrates the importance of preserving the war records of scenes of Atlanta. No area is more saturated with historic interest than that on which modern Atlanta is built.

Future generations, if they are to retain that inspiration of true Americanism which springs from the achievements of earlier generations, must be reminded always of the sacrifices that were made and the heroisms displayed when the nation was in the crucible from which today's great country emerged.

The material benefits involved in creation of the national park proposed are not inconsiderable. But the spiritual benefits, the better citizenship and the inculcation of true American ideals, outweigh every other consideration. They will continue through centuries to come and forever tell the story of the days when men of opposing governmental beliefs offered up their lives for a cause which each side believed just.

With the object lessons of Shanghai and Spain before the eyes of the world there can be no doubt as to the strategies to be followed in future wars. Any nation which appeals to the force of arms in the future may know that there will be no safety for civilians or the helpless. Death will rain upon the unarmed just as it rains upon the soldiers of the front line.

However, if doubt remains, some recent suggestions for a "up to date" warfare which appeared in a German military journal, add illumination. The article in question is quoted in The Digest, which says the German publication is "a respectable military journal highly professional in its restrained tone."

Despite this high respectability and restraint of tone, the aforesaid journal discusses the best means of spreading disease germs, infectious plagues and poison vapors among enemy civilian populations! It declared that "far-away civilians" offer better targets than the front line enemy and added that drinking water, foodstuffs and domestic animals are fair game for attack. Among its recommendations was the spread, among the enemy population, of typhus, yellow fever, typhoid, smallpox, cholera and dysentery.

That such barbarism should even be discussed in this supposed "enlightened" age must cause thinking men and women to wonder how thick, after all, is the veneer of civilization.

The sympathy of all Georgia rests today with B. Frank Whelchel, congressman of the Ninth Georgia district, and with Albert S. Hardy, editor of the Gainesville News, as they lie in a hospital at Gainesville, seriously injured in an automobile accident.

Representative Whelchel and Mr. Hardy are among the most valuable citizens of north Georgia. They have served their communities and the state ably and well. The state as a whole will rejoice that the outcome of their accident was not more serious.

It is the heartfelt hope of all who know them that they may quickly recover from their hurts and soon be able to resume their careers of service.

A filler item, from Washington, says that in the National Museum alone there are more than 10,000 empty skulls.

But where is China, every four years, when the United States has to be saved?

And when Spain is delivered from the Spaniards and China is saved from the Chinese, it should be 1940 and time to rescue America again.

New researches show that babies can hear from the time they are born. What they catch these days ought to age our young before their time.

THAT PROGRESS MAY CONTINUE

In order to maintain the American standard of living and that progress of the American social order may continue, the opportunity of the individual to advance in any organization through ability and merit must be protected, emphasized William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation, in a speech delivered Thursday night in Boston.

Mr. Knudsen urged that there be no widening of the gulf that now exists between capital and labor, and upholds the American methods in industry by which any man may lift himself into positions of greater importance by his own effort and inherent ability.

Reviewing the industrial union campaign against the motor industry, Mr. Knudsen cited that the "sudden fury" of the onslaught was so unexpected that the executives were "taken aback." He admits that the defense made by the industry was not very efficient, but relates that every effort was made to remove all possible conditions in the shops which might be open to criticism.

The weakness of the industrial union, he points out, is that it binds every employee to take up the dispute of people in whom they may have no interest whatever. "To say that a toolmaker or first class grinder should concern himself with the plight of his union brother who is pushing a truck is taking a pretty general viewpoint," said Mr. Knudsen.

The danger of this situation, he points out, is that union officials are forced to create grievances for all classes of workers, in order to hold the ranks of strikers firm, regardless of actual conditions in nine-tenths of the plants involved.

The banding together of workers on a basis of craft, he holds, is logical and hundreds of years old. But when organized labor split into two rival branches, the direct action which followed was not only unnecessary, he says, but expensive to all involved. "The early stages of the conflict," he cites, "resembled very much a ball game without an umpire and with everybody in the grandstands hollering advice."

The test of the Wagner labor relations act, Mr. Knudsen feels, is whether it will smooth out or lessen industrial stoppages. He fully approves collective bargaining, believing it will eventually become orderly, but to achieve this ideal both sides in each case must know the facts, be willing to present them and to abide by them.

Concluding, Mr. Knudsen declares that management is necessary to keep the wheels of industry turning and that the profit motive cannot be destroyed without destroying private capital, without which private industry cannot continue.

"I think there is a place in the picture for both capital and labor," he declared, "and that place can best be determined by an examination into the economics of both sides. I think that labor's fair share in the proceeds of business should be determined by what the pay envelope buys, and that the relationship of costs to prices should be examined before a false money standard per day or per annum is proposed."

Certainly there is sound advice for both capital and labor in the thoughtful address of this outstanding industrial leader.

THE HIGHWAYS OF THE AIR

Elaborate rules for safety in air travel have recently been issued by the Bureau of Air Commerce. Designed to make flying safer they nevertheless actually give the private flyer greater freedom, provided he obeys the regulations drawn up for the safety, not only of himself, but of all others using the airways.

Strange as it may seem to the layman, the highways of the skies are not unlimited in area and there is a very real danger of collision, especially under conditions of poor visibility and in blind flying. Commercial pilots have long believed the collision menace, with private flyers, to be one of the leading dangers of their profession.

How much greater that danger will be when the average man considers his own airplane as necessary as he considers his automobile today is self-evident. It is probably well that the bureau is laying down strict regulations now.

There are definite channels of flight in the air, just as there are definite transportation highways on land; thus the area of navigable space is rather rigidly circumscribed. These aerial roads are as clearly defined to the experienced pilot as though they were marked with guide posts. The desire to follow the straightest line between two points, peculiarities of terrain below, the use of visual air beacons or radio guides and the avoidance of sections where storms and air disturbances make flying dangerous have resulted in establishment of well worn channels of flight.

The new regulations prescribe different altitude levels for different types of flyers, require two-way radios on all planes and make mandatory that all pilots, commercial or private, furnish the airports involved with advance notice of their plans for departure, flight and destination.

Editorial of the Day

TUNING OUT NIGHTMARES
(From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.)

Discussing the contemplated house cleaning within the Federal Communications Commission, George Henry Payne, a commission member, asserted a great need for raising the standards of radio amusement productions. Particularly he called for a ban on blood-curdling programs for children. And over the nation millions of parents blessed his name! Declared Commissioner Payne: "The radio stations ought to be prevented from pumping into 30,000,000 homes children's programs of such character as they broadcast now. I have had many communications condemning them."

The protests filtering into Mr. Payne's hands are but spray from an angry sea of parental objection. So many of those "story-hour" programs for children are crammed with shooting, violence, peril, gangsters, dragons and other monsters of perverted drama.

If sponsors thoroughly realized the results of such programs, surely they would ban them forthwith. Maybe Commissioner Payne can show them the error of their other-ways.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

LOUD WHISPER WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—"Roosevelt for congress!" That's the reverberating whisper that is soon to shiver the walls of congressional corridors. Not F. D. R., or James, credited with senatorial ambitions, but Elliott, now a stalwart Texan.

It's just a whisper, of course, but it is loud enough to echo all the way from the Lone Star State, perhaps relayed by surprised and sometimes somewhat dismayed members of the delegation that boasts such a firm grip on the legislative branch of government.

Surprise is the word to describe the reception of the report in certain southern quarters. Perhaps not so much surprise in others. The way the tale runs today is this:

Some time ago, Floor Leader Sam Rayburn, wheelhorse of the administration, recommended his colleague, Fritz Garland Lanham, one of the best-loved congressmen (on either side of the aisle), for membership on the Federal Communications Commission.

Earlier, the Texas delegation went on record in favor of Lanham for the presidency of the University of Texas, no small honor. There is no connection between the two acts. But there is hardly anything within reason that his colleagues wouldn't hand to the popular Fritz if they could do it.

But now, whether the cart went before the horse or otherwise in either suggestion, the talk is that Elliott Roosevelt would, if it were empty, run for Fritz Lanham's seat in congress.

Fritz Lanham, worthy Fort Worthian, isn't what you would call a rubber stamp. In fact, he is almost as independent as the well-known hog on ice. His modesty is reflected in a four-line biography in the Congressional Directory which would have taken up several pages if some of his friends had written it. He could probably stay in congress, if he wanted to, until the youngest voter had died of old age. He may.

COTTON BATTLE Behind the shadow of those cotton bales soon to pile up in the south there may be a battle that will sound like Jackson at New Orleans.

Whether it will be a one-man defense, with the heroic figure of Colonel Lawrence Westbrook trying to hold the fort against crop control, or an organized garrison, remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, the doughty colonel, who has become an interesting if somewhat mysterious figure on the Washington scene, is considerably shocked by the attack made upon him by Oscar Johnston, adviser to Secretary Wallace. Mr. Johnston called Mr. Westbrook's "Committee for Cotton" an organization of the "big interests" and declared Westbrook was disloyal to the New Deal.

Westbrook has replied nothing so far, but he is soon to be heard from. It is said he may be invited to address the Grange, and, if so, would take that occasion to come out with rousing support for the President and the New Deal, but beg to differ on the subject of crop restriction. He is still an adviser to Harry Hopkins (without pay) and represents at present the Association of Southern States' Commissioners of Agriculture. He was named by Senator Smith to investigate the cotton co-operatives (in which Mr. Johnston is interested).

COTTON COMMITTEE If the "Committee for Cotton" now dormant, awakes to its might, it will launch a campaign to persuade the country that the economic future of the south lies in unrestricted production, sale of cotton in the world markets and subsidy for the producer to make up the differential.

At least, such will be the program if Colonel Westbrook has his way. Meanwhile, some of Mr. Westbrook's friends, among them Will Clayton, world's largest cotton merchant, have been talking with Secretary Wallace and think (wisely, perhaps) that Secretary Wallace will lean a little further toward the ideas he expressed in his Memphis speech, advocating search for world markets, and a little further away from drastic control.

ENGLISH AS SHE IS WROTE "Miraculous Escape From Infernal Tunchow" is the title of a yellow-bound pamphlet "printed in Japan" which is being circulated in Washington. It is notable not less for the blood-curdling quality of the adventures of the Japanese war correspondents than for its inimitable style.

The first paragraph of the foreword reads: "Since the outbreak of the Lukouchiao incident in the midnight of July 7, the imperial army used its mind to launch punitive operations against the Chinese forces ever so outrageously challenging."

The account is then taken up in the words of the Japanese correspondents. One describes the attack which took place while he was in a Japanese hotel in Tunchow: "Bang! Bang! Bang! The rifle report became louder and louder. 'What, on earth, can be the matter?' he asked to himself. In the next instant, quick as thought, the window was up out of bed and right on the phone, but all in vain. The wire seemed already cut off."

FAIR ENOUGH Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Who Started NEW YORK, Oct. 29. All believers in democracy naturally loathe Mussolini, Hitler and all that they represent, but there should be a sort of Jim Crow rule to segregate Communists who would attempt to join us in this pleasure. They have special reasons for their hatred, quite different from those of people who believe in freedom. After all, the Communists were responsible for these horrors, and it isn't atrocities which they deplore but the fact that they aren't in charge of the terror. They are sore because one set of tough guys in Italy and another set in Germany finally decided that they would rather die than submit to any more kicking around and went into the streets to fight the Bolos according to their own rough-and-tumble rules. The record book shows that in each case the Communists took an awful shelling.

But they had gone around asking for it, murdering innocent patriots, wrecking, mobbing, bombing, terrorizing and showing their muscle until a long suffering Popeye reached inside his gump for his can of spinach, cranked up the Sunday punch and let them have it square on the button.

Mussolini's hoodlums crowded them with castor oil until it ran out their ears, sometimes in cock-hat mixed with thousands, and whether they took it neat or half-and-half, the results usually were fatal in a very dreadful and humiliating way. This method of execution or assassination, though unique and ribald, was no more than the standard practice by which the Communists had wiped out nobody knows how many hundred thousand political heretics in Russia and which they were using in their post-war missionary work among the Italians and the down-hearted Heines.

Squawks of They were very cocky and took no back talk from the natives when they were out in front, and it was only when they were back in the play area and began to run them up alleys that they appreciated the horrors of the concentration camps and appealed to the sucker liberals of the world to witness what dirt was being done. But their own prisons were no picnic, and the Communists had been or would be in this country tomorrow if they held the dice.

At first their initials in both countries, however, for when it came time to fight Fascists and Nazis adopted their methods and ethics and thus degraded themselves to the level which they had thought to escape. They abolished freedom of the press and thought and speech, and became bold, brazen, cantankerous liars and double-crossers to whom no perfidy was too rotten for the achievement of any purpose, and no pledge or treaty was worth the ink on the paper. They were from civilization to give something which they thought was new but which was merely a reversion to vices that intelligent races hoped they had outgrown until the Communists revived them.

Tough Fascists, Nazis and Communists in the American outfit midst all use the same tactics, imposing on the tolerance of a free and comparatively honest country, which suffers great exasperation for its idealism, and with hatred of American principles in their hearts, and invoke their rights as such to strut their loyalty to murderous dictators in the guise of good-will groups.

Likewise our Communists, imported and domestic, demand the protection of the hated and abusive CIO, and of a government whose destruction is their purpose when they go out to demonstrate against the government. Fascists and Nazis would protect us against the Bolo and the Bolo would save us from them. But we may wonder why they are so solicitous about democracy, considering that they are rivals only in their detestation to destroy it.

Both are a political burden to any candidate whom they affiliate with their indorsement, and the CIO's handicap is its unpopularity, if unwelcome, element of Communists who see in a unified command of three million workmen, properly exploited, an army of riot and oppression.

Cause and effect, equally brutal and ruthless, equally intolerant, cynical and hostile to American belief, they call on democracy to witness and punish the atrocities which they have inflicted on one another. The point to remember amid their clamor is that they are one and a half-dozen of the other and that because they are practically alike one healthy democratic loathing will cover both.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"For God, for Country, and for Yale!"

Some people laugh now at the absolutes of loyalty with which undergraduates of a few years back were wont to regard their college and its football team. Going to college is a business proposition now, they say, something bought and sold like any other commodity. And college football is even more of a business proposition, what with "athletic scholarships," enormous gate receipts, high-salaried coaches, radio broadcasting concessions, hundred-men squads, and all manner of unmentioned emoluments for good players. The circumstances which have brought it about that the colleges and universities of America are now expected to provide America each fall with its greatest outdoor spectacle, entertain more people even than the professional baseball season, make it natural and proper, they say, that football should become a business and impossible that it should fail to be. The "for God, for country and for Yale" stuff is sentimental nonsense now.

Fortright gentlemen like President Tiger, of the University of Florida; President Hamilton Holt, of Rollins, and others are proposing that there be an end to this hypocritical pretense of anything really professional in modern college football and a frank buying and selling of good players, with market prices published and even, we imagine, bargain counters, distress sales, and the like.

But no one who has seen regular professional football played and who has noted, in spite of the superior play, the awful something missing can overlook the loss to all parties concerned if college football is made openly professional. Even at cost of a certain hypocrisy, it seems to this writer, college football should be kept as it is, semi-professional perhaps under the surface and behind the scene but gloriously amateur still in the eyes and hearts of undergraduates, alumni, the general public, and, probably, the players themselves. Let's pretend a little, if necessary, since the pretending is still successful with many more than see through it.

Undergraduates of this rough and cynical old world need nothing more today than retention or recovery of their "for God, for country and for Yale" complex. Neither do the alumni. Neither do people in general. The ability to believe in something with one's whole heart and soul, to thrill to a thing with all the blood in one's veins, to lose one's own little identity in soul-stirring loyalty to something larger—to a college, a country, a God—is the secret of all progress and of all happiness in life. That ability is lost already to many and may be lost to all unless the things that inspire it are meticulously saved.

HENDAYE, France, Oct. 29.—(P)—A government communique announced today that an insurgent surprise attack on the Guadalajara front northeast of Madrid had been beaten and the insurgents had suffered heavy losses.

The sudden shift in the insurgent attack was aimed at the government positions along the road leading north from Guadalajara to Soria in the salient that shoots off at a tangent from the broad Aragon front, where Franco has massed his troops for an attack

FRENCH BATTERIES WARN GERMAN PLANE

HENDAYE, France, Oct. 29.—(P)—French anti-aircraft batteries fired blanks today to warn off a German airliner which officers said passed low over a forbidden zone along the Franco-Spanish frontier.

It was the second incident of its kind in less than three weeks.

800 REPORTED SLAIN IN MADRID BOMBINGS

MADRID, Oct. 29.—(P)—The Spanish government announced today that 800 persons had been killed and more than 4,000 hurt in the shelling and bombing of Madrid since the city was first besieged, November 7, 1936.

Observers found the official estimates of Madrid's casualties surprisingly low. They amount to about five for every 1,000 persons during a period in which there were 30 air raids, 50 heavy shellings and innumerable light bombardments.

Florida Governor Condemns Miami Vagrant Express

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 29.—(P)—Governor Cone, a recent target of organizations concerned with civil liberties, has condemned south-east Florida's hobo express as "something beyond understanding" in a "free country" and requested the sheriffs to stop it.

In a letter to four sheriffs, made public today, he branded "absolutely illegal and unconstitutional" the practice of rounding up vagrants during the winter season and trucking them back up north. Police chiefs of Miami and Miami Beach, conferring with Sheriff Coleman, decided to continue the system, however, despite the governor's opposition.

"It is a deplorable situation but we are doing the best of a bad job," said Chief Quigg, of Miami. "If we treat these vagrants who come to Miami every winter with kindness, we will have thousands instead of hundreds here."

"They seek work which is not available, many of them turn to thievery and banditry and they form a menace to the community. If the Governor can suggest a way out we will be delighted to conform with his wishes."

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

FORGOTTEN?

Who could name the man who gave William Carey, the village cobbler, the money with which he bought a few choice books and thereby became the scholar-missionary of the orient? How many could name the shoe salesman who told Dwight L. Moody about Christ? Who was the minister on that stormy night who preached to a small company of people and Spurgeon was converted? Can anyone remember the name of the itinerant Wesleyan minister who preached one night in a barn in an obscure community in Ireland and Toplady was led to Christ—the author of "Rock of Ages"? Forgotten men, we are tempted to say. No, no. They may be forgotten for the moment, but some day we shall know them. Some day, some certain day, Carey will stand by that London businessman in heaven, and he will tell the redeemed hosts about that layman's contribution. And just so, I believe, with every person who serves. Neither the dead nor the doer will be lost to memory.

Forgetful of self, concerned only in doing His will, may we take up the theme of the cherished hymn: "Sowing in the morning, Sowing seeds of kindness, Sowing in the noontide, And the dewy eve, Waiting for the harvest, And the time of reaping, We shall come rejoicing, Bringing in the sheaves."

BREWERS' CODE

Foundation Members Pledge Their Aid to Sobriety.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 29.—The brewers who produce nearly half of the nation's beer and ale pledged themselves today to a code of practice designed to eliminate so-called evils of their industry.

The code, adopted by the United Brewers' Industrial Foundation, follows: The brewing industry of the United States, custodian of an art and science practiced since the beginnings of recorded history, supplies a beverage to the major part of our population. Beer is the bulwark of moderation and sobriety.

The industry recognizes its direct responsibility to itself and to the nation to conduct its operations in accordance with the desires and conscience of the American public. Members of the United Brewers' Industrial Foundation, in convention assembled, representing nearly half the production of beer and ale in the United States, mutually and individually pledge themselves to the following code of practice:

We pledge ourselves, as citizens and as businessmen, to conduct our business in conformity with established laws in cooperation with the authorities. We pledge ourselves as scientific brewers to maintain exacting high standards in the brewing and packaging of beer and ale. We pledge ourselves, with all thoughtful citizens, to the promotion of practical moderation and sobriety. We pledge our support to the duly constituted authorities for the elimination of anti-social conditions wherever they may surround the sale of beer to the consumer. We pledge ourselves morally to support and encourage the great body of retailers who sell beer as law-abiding citizens and who operate legal, respectable premises. We pledge ourselves to co-operate with the duly constituted authorities to prevent beer sales to minors, or to persons who are drunk to excess. We pledge ourselves to truth in the advertising of beer. We pledge ourselves faithfully to observe the provisions of this code of practice, convinced that beer is the nation's bulwark of moderation and sobriety.

SAVANNAH BARGES MAY AID SOUTHEAST

Utilization of River Would Develop Dixie Tremendously, IWC Agent Says.

Proper utilization of the Savannah river might achieve the same results as are being sought by 10 southern governors in their fight for lower freight rates, Thomas Q. Ashburn, investigator for the government-owned Inland Waterways Corporation, told delegates to the Southern Motor Carriers' rate conference yesterday.

"Rail lines have declined to establish voluntarily the joint rates that congress clearly intended should be established and have announced their intention of delaying the establishment of such barge-rail and rail-barge rates until ultimately forced to establish them by order of the Interstate Commerce Commission," he declared.

Initial operation of a common carrier on the Savannah river would be confined exclusively to a joint truck-barge and barge-truck rates, he pointed out.

Ashburn advised the truck operators he is making a survey to determine whether there is sufficient traffic, through routes and joint tariff arrangements with connecting carriers to make barge line service feasible.

The investigator expressed the belief that proper common carrier service on the Savannah river, coordinated with other forms of transportation would result in tremendous development of the southeast.

ERLANGER TAXES MAY BE SETTLED

Mayor Disapproves of Permanent City Operation.

Mayor Hartsfield volunteered to effect a settlement of back taxes for the Erlanger theater property yesterday, as the finance committee made plans for leasing it.

The mayor said he was sure an arrangement satisfactory to the former owners of the property and the city could be reached. He disapproved of the idea of the city operating the building permanently, he asserted.

Councilman Frank Wilson told the mayor offers for settlement from John L. Westmoreland, lawyer for the estate of the late Baroness Reba Lowe Rosenkrantz, had been too low. Westmoreland offered $9,000 for the $34,000 back tax bill. The mayor said he would have conferences with Westmoreland to effect a settlement soon.

Wilson was authorized to buy coal for the theater building property.

KENNESAW OWNERS TO APPEAL AWARD

Government Condemnation Fought by Association.

Petition for appeal of the case of the United States government against the Kennesaw Mountain Battlefield Association, in which the government seeks to condemn Kennesaw lands for a national park, was filed by the association yesterday in federal district court.

In seeking the appeal, the association charged that certain tax returns were not admitted in the district court trial, that the jury abused its discretion in placing the value of the lands at $9,000, and that Judge Samuel H. Sibley erred in raising the sum from $9,000 to $16,000.

After federal jury awarded the association $9,000 for the lands, Judge Samuel H. Sibley said he did not think the sum was adequate and issued an order for a new trial unless the government consented to pay $16,000 within 30 days. The government consented and the new trial was denied.

The petition for appeal was filed by Attorneys Clint W. Hager, Sam Hewlett and Walter Dillon.

DRUGGISTS FACING REGISTRY CHARGES

Filing Prescriptions Without License Alleged.

Following up a nation-wide drive to halt use of the deadly drug, elixir of sulfanilamide, in prescriptions, the state food and drug department launched a campaign here yesterday against unregistered pharmacists by ordering the arrest of two druggists.

Accusations were sworn out against Dr. W. M. Archer, of Hammers' drug store, 340 Glenwood avenue, S. E., and Orville Cawthon Jr., of Cawthon drug store, 2813 Peachtree road, charging them with filling prescriptions without being registered pharmacists, in violation of state law.

Bench warrants were issued immediately and bonds were set at $200 each. The accusations were taken out in Fulton criminal court by G. T. Pierce, state food and drug inspector, at direction of Dr. F. E. Bush, chief inspector of the state food and drug department.

FULTON GRAND JURY PRESENTS SEPTEMBER-OCTOBER, 1937, TERM

Hon. E. D. Thomas, Judge, Fulton Superior Court, Atlanta, Georgia.

In accordance with the charge given us by the court, we have made an investigation of county affairs and have also, in accordance with the court's charge, made investigation in the lottery racket.

In special presentations already made to the court we have outlined our stand and findings, and we now want to take this opportunity to again emphasize the reports and findings contained in this special presentation.

This grand jury is keenly alive to the fact that lottery activities were actually stopped in Atlanta before our indictments were returned. This was accomplished by the imposition of heavy fines and high bonds imposed by the courts. This weapon was available at all times during the years that this lottery operated in Fulton county, and those responsible should be severely criticized for not having employed it long ago.

While indictments have been returned against the larger operators in the lottery field by the grand jury, we recognize that no permanent good can be accomplished unless the full force of public opinion and enforcement of law and order continues squarely in the back of this movement, which is only started. We know that the work we have done is only a beginning and we again recommend that the incoming grand jury be instructed to continue the investigation of all racketeers, especially those being given the subject of grand among law enforcement officers. Bribery is the worst of all forms of crime, especially when it applies to an officer, sworn to the discharge of his duty.

We also wish to make the following special recommendations:

FIRST: We recommend that all focal points of crime be removed. By this we refer to the known and suspected points for criminals, which—as often as not—are centered in respectable communities. Their elimination may present a problem to the heads of our law enforcement organizations. We nevertheless recommend that this special request not be taken lightly and that serious and definite efforts be made to eliminate and suppress all gatherings of gamblers, hijackers, bookmakers, burglars, and all types of vicious criminals, even to the potential criminal—the common vagrant.

SECOND: We recommend that the state law and the city ordinance regarding lotteries be more completely enforced by the courts. Evidence of offenders should be turned over to the chief of police to be impounded by him until final disposal of all cases that are made. This recommendation is made in an effort to assist the recorders in determining the status of cases brought before them, and to assist them in binding over to the state courts all defendants where sufficient evidence for proper prosecution may be available.

THIRD: There should be set up a board of inspection and control within the city police department. This board should operate directly under the chief of police, the police committee and the mayor, and should consist of not less than 10 persons to be selected outside of the police department. It should be the sole duty of this commission to inspect conditions on the beat of each policeman, and also to go carefully into the conduct of each policeman. The members of this committee should be empowered to make a complete criminal survey of the city of Atlanta, and this should be co-ordinated with the activities of the policeman upon whose beat criminal conditions are found to exist.

We believe that a rule should be passed requiring every policeman on a beat to report, in writing, each day the suspicious characters on his beat and also any disorders in and around poolrooms, or other loitering places. This report should include, in addition to suspected robbers, burglars and yeggmen, also all types of criminals and potential criminals, also prostitutes and vagrants.

FOURTH: We commend the practice of city police in regularly visiting poolrooms, beer saloons and other loitering places, and urge that this police work be strengthened and extended by prompt revocation of licenses and closing of any such places which are apparently becoming the spawning places of crime.

FIFTH: We commend Chief of Police Hornsby in his efforts to place strong, efficient and trustworthy policemen in the spots where crime is thriving, but we urge that greater efforts be made to remove from their places of public trust those officers who are found to be indolent or indifferent.

SIXTH: Evidence presented to this grand jury shows that there exist in our negro communities a number of dives, known to the police and known to be breeding places for crime. These known dives should be promptly closed.

Evidence coming to this body shows an alarming number of violators of state laws governing concealed weapons, especially among the occupants of the dives, above mentioned, and, we, therefore, recommend that even more stringent laws be passed covering the ownership and carrying of firearms, and that particular attention be given to the sale of firearms to irresponsible persons.

We wish to call attention of the business community to the more or less prevalent practice of abandoning, by agreement, the prosecution of apprehended forgers and embezzlers upon restitution of the sums involved. This does not serve the ends of justice and, in fact, is nothing less than the compounding of a felony.

We also recommend a policy of more frequent and vigorous prosecution of the receivers of stolen goods.

The attention of the grand jury has been directed to the manner of handling funds paid into the municipal court by litigants. This method of procedure deserves the immediate attention of the court. Although the funds deposited with the clerk by litigants are originated by the court, when such funds are turned over to the clerk it seems that they are no longer under the court's jurisdiction, but solely under the jurisdiction of the clerk. Although the funds unquestionably belong to the litigants, they are deposited in the bank account of the clerk, and the interest accruing from such funds is claimed by the clerk for his personal use.

It has come to our attention that interest on such funds was withdrawn from the bank by the clerk, and that the said estate is now laying claim to the balance of the original fund, which we understand amounts to approximately $4,000. It is our understanding that since our investigation started the county attorney has begun suit in this case.

The present marshal of the municipal court, Mr. George, frankly admits that he intends to personally draw and use interest on like funds coming under his control. The audit shows that there was in his hands of litigants' funds approximately $7,000 on March 31, 1937. In the opinion of this body, taking interest on such funds, simply means an arbitrary way of increasing his salary, which salary—in our opinion—is already sufficiently large for the services rendered.

We are advised that the law does not cover the proper jurisdiction of these funds. It is, therefore, recommended that the county attorney prepare the proper bill, to be sponsored by him and to be introduced in the next session of the legislature, which would set up a central auditing department, and that all funds be, at all times, under the jurisdiction of the court, and that such funds be deposited at interest after court costs are deducted, and that the interest accruing from such funds, and any unclaimed funds, be deposited in the county treasury for the benefit of the county.

In the case of the clerk of the superior court, the audit shows, and the clerk admits, that up until the latter part of 1932 he collected interest on similar funds deposited to his credit, as clerk. These sums vary in amounts from $5,000 to $60,000. These irregularities were called to the attention of the court, and the court did, on December 1, 1932, appoint Mr. George Haney as trust officer for these funds, in conjunction with Mr. Simmons. This trust officer has since been succeeded by Mr. Don Wynne, and the checks for the withdrawal of these funds must be signed by the trust officer, and countersigned by Mr. Simmons, clerk. Since the appointment of a trust officer, there has been no further irregularity in these funds. However, the audit also shows that the funds are short in the amount of $276.03, which the auditor claims is due to the trust officer, Mr. Simmons, as shown in the audit of March 31, 1937. This amount is in addition to the sum of $524.51 interest on these funds.

It is our recommendation that municipal court handle funds belonging to litigants as the superior court has done, pending the proper adjustment of the law.

TAX RECEIVER'S, TAX ASSESSORS' AND TAX COLLECTOR'S OFFICES.

The tax receiver is required by law to prepare digests of returned property; and subsequently is required, also by law, to prepare for the use of the County Board of Assessors, or known property owners who have failed to make a return. This requirement, with reference to a list of "delinquents," has not been fulfilled for years.

It is the opinion of Mr. Guy A. Moore that such a list would be of no great value, and that the good to be derived from it would be offset by the expense of preparation. It is suggested that this body that such a list might save to Fulton county at least a portion of the commissions now being paid to "special tax investigators" by the County Board of Assessors, and would also make for a more orderly handling of unreturned property, and consequently, and consequently, greater returns to the county. At the same time property owners would be less likely to be subjected to the extra diligent and sometimes misdirected inquiry of a special tax investigator working on a fee basis.

This body holds no brief for a tax evader, but is not in favor of the fee system as practiced in the tax assessor's office. The people of this city, county and state have abolished the fee system as applying to various fundamental offices and this purpose of the people might well be applied to all public employees, although some fee or commission contracts may be and are entirely legal.

The tax receiver's office regularly employs 13 deputies, of which some four or five are usually loaned or assigned to the tax collector's office during the busy season of the latter office. This body commends this practice as a step in the right direction. This body is of the opinion that the offices of the tax receiver and tax collector could and should be combined, thus saving to the county at least the salary of one of these officials, and certainly resulting in greater efficiency of operation.

A more complete understanding and a more complete picture than is at present available is essential to an intelligent approach to this question. Therefore, this body recommends that no specific action be taken until after publication of the findings of Dr. Thomas H. Reed, director consultant service of the National Municipal League.

It is our understanding that South Carolina has a law requiring the county tax receiver to affix an approval stamp to all documents involving a transfer of real estate before the clerk of a court of record may accept them for filing.

A nominal fee of 50 cents is charged for the affixing of the above approval stamp.

In any way a piece of property not on the county digests must be brought to the attention of the county tax receiver before title to it can be legally transferred. The tax receiver, of course, would be expected and should be required to make proper record of all transfers in order to facilitate proper future returns or to insure proper future listing as a delinquent and proper assessment of the property in question.

The Board of Tax Assessors is authorized by law to employ special tax investigators on commission not to exceed 10 per cent of the amount of taxes collected on property not listed on digests.

The board has employed two investigators, Messrs. John Armistead and L. S. Mayer.

Mr. Armistead, some three years ago, contracted with the board to handle on a 10 per cent basis, tax collections on intangibles not on the digests. This 10 per cent is figured on that portion of the taxes collected for county and school purposes. It is learned that the state of Georgia has heretofore paid him only 2 per cent of tax money collections made in its behalf, but recently has increased the fee to 25 per cent. Following is a tabulation of the gross amounts of tax monies collected on this basis by Mr. Armistead from August 14, 1934, to July 14, 1937, as reported to T. E. Suttles, tax collector, by Comer Davis, for the Board of County Assessors:

Commission of 2 per cent paid by T. E. Suttles, tax collector, on state amounts, with the exception of ($116.70) July, 1937, which commission was 25 per cent.

L. S. Mayer more recently has contracted with the board to handle on a 10 per cent basis, tax collections on certain classifications of personal property not on the tax digests.

The name of a field book for the assessment of real property in the county has long been apparent. The WFA, working with the assessor's office, county engineer and other regular county employees, has undertaken this work and considerable progress has been made. It is estimated that the 1937 will be completed during 1938.

The tax collector's office is badly crowded and poorly equipped, a physical situation which we commend to the attention of the county commissioners, since it can not be much longer continued without impairment of proper and efficient operation.

Mr. T. E. Suttles, tax collector, reports having recently filed with the state comptroller a final report on 1934 collections. His office is now starting on the clearance of 1935 digests.

No. fi. fas. resulting from non-payment of 1935 taxes have as yet been advertised for sale, but a considerable number and amount of these have been sold to private parties or corporations. These sales have been principally to four companies or individuals regularly engaged in the business of buying tax fi. fas. for profit. (Interest rate is prescribed by law).

The county tax collector in no wise controls such matters, nor has he any jurisdiction after fi. fas. are sold, and he is required, by law, to deliver fi. fas. to purchasers even when they have not been advertised for sale.

In connection with our investigation of present assessment and collection of taxes we have been furnished information as to practices now existing as to transfer of fi. fas. and the handling of tax deeds. We believe there has developed in our community a very definite "tax deed racket," which is exacting toll from our already overburdened real estate taxpayers.

We think also that conditions have arisen under which tax fi. fas. are handled at an expense entirely disproportionate to their security. Several companies are operating in Atlanta whose business consists of paying taxes for taxpayers who are unable to make payment. These companies take a transfer of the tax fi. fas. to themselves and allow the taxpayer to satisfy the fi. fas. by making monthly payments. A service charge is exacted and the expense to the taxpayer for handling tax fi. fas. under this method is approximately 10 to 12 per cent.

Something is radically wrong with our present tax system when the highest lien on property is traded and trafficked in at such a rate. First loans on property, which are inferior to tax liens, command a rate of from 5 to 7 per cent, while tax liens are handled by these companies at from 10 to 12 per cent.

The method outlined above applies to the legitimate tax fi. fas. companies. At the 1937 session of the legislature a law was passed permitting the transfer of tax fi. fas. in bulk by the city of Atlanta and by Fulton county at a discount of 10 per cent.

We believe this law is a violation of the public's knowledge. To permit such a discount on tax liens is unfair to taxpayers and will produce a rate of return entirely disproportionate to the security. The policy-determining bodies of the city of Atlanta and Fulton county should direct that no fi. fas. be transferred pursuant to this act and it should be repealed at once. It is an encouragement to tax fi. fas. purchasers and to the tax deed racket.

The traffic in tax fi. fas. is but a circumstance to the traffic in the purchase of tax deeds. The tax deed purchaser buys properties at tax sales. Many such purchasers withhold the fact of purchase from the owner until expiration of the redemption period of 12 months, and then demand possession of the property. Oftentimes such tax deeds are taken in the name of non-residents. Oftentimes owners transfer from one to another by unrecorded deeds—in fact many devious methods are pursued to keep the owner from redeeming property within the time allowed by law. After title has ripened by 12 months' ownership of deed, the owner is then notified and informed that he can redeem the property, but the price of redemption is sometimes many times the amount of the original tax. Under the law a tax sale is ad-lights, police protection, sanitary and garbage disposal facilities, fire protection, and many other things for which the county is called on day by day to furnish service to the outlying districts of the county.

We have made a thorough study of the August 31, 1937, budget report of the county—the last available to us—and find that a reduction of $14,316.54 in the county's current deficit is indicated for 1937. While this does show the budget to be balanced, we are of the opinion that the safety margin is dangerously small when the annual receipts and expenditures, before loans and repayments, exceed by a million dollars.

In the course of our inquiry, upon which we shall not attempt to report in detail, we did develop some facts that seem to us will be of interest to the citizens of Fulton county.

There is no inventory record of any equipment or small tools employed by the public works department. Your county commissioners have no way of knowing even how many steam rollers the county owns, except from memory. No private enterprise could survive under such loose supervision-methods and we, therefore, suggest the institution and maintenance of a proper inventory set-up to cover these tools and equipment.

The real estate and improvements owned by the county are valued at approximately $3,000,000. This valuation is based largely on an appraisal made in 1917 with subsequent additions made in actual cost. No depreciation is taken.

We concur in the presentations of a past grand jury, recommending that: "An impartial and non-political survey be made of the methods employed in the expenditures by the city of Atlanta and the county of Fulton." We approve of the manner in which this is being accomplished, namely—one-third of the cost being defrayed by the city of Atlanta, one-third by the county of Fulton and one-third by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, representing the business interests of the community.

It is our belief that only by such an analytical survey, and recommendations growing therefrom, that duplications of expenditures between these respective governments can be determined, and a well defined program be developed looking toward economic and efficient efficiency in governmental functions.

This grand jury attaches great importance to accomplishing these ends, believing that a sound tax structure and a well administered government to be essential to attract additional industry and to retain capital, the loss of which can only result in serious detriment to the community's growth and welfare.

It is the definite opinion of this grand jury that salaries of county employees are excessive and above the average paid by first-class firms in private business employing large groups. We, of course, are not in a position to value the services of the individual employees, but it is our observation that the county personnel is not above the average, and we see no justification for the payment of salaries above the average paid for similar work in private business. This same thing holds true with reference to a comparison of salaries paid by the state government. They run consistently below the county scale.

A limited turnover in any organization is desirable while excessive turnover is most undesirable. The almost total absence of turnover in the county organization is indicative of excessive salaries, political appointments, or nepotism.

We fully realize that the county commissioners cannot spare the time necessary to study the qualifications of every individual employee in order to fix the ratings and wages to be paid to each. We, therefore, recommend that this authority be delegated to the department heads, subject to final approval by the commissioners, and that along with this authority go full responsibility for bringing salaries in line with the average prevailing in private organizations.

We believe the above steps can be taken under the present law if the policy-determining bodies of city and county will take a firm position on such matters.

The matter of fixing and enforcing tax liens under the law needs radical revision. Tax liens should be beyond question, should provide an adequate method of enforcement, should be backed by the guarantee of the city and county and that demand should be created for their purchase by legitimate interests at lowest possible rate. The purchasers of such fi. fas. and tax deeds would be given opportunity to take over income from these properties until their legitimate indebtedness is retired. Property should be sold only as a last resort and exorbitant sales costs should be eliminated. The legal departments of both city and county are now adequately manned. We believe it is time for these departments to consider constructive legislation to take all racket tendencies out of our law enforcement, and to determine what can be done under the present law to remedy the evil, and what changes should be sought in basic laws. The excess bid racket was stamped out by the local tax authorities. Why not finish the job?

CLERK, SUPERIOR COURT.

During our investigation we had occasion to examine the records of the clerk of the superior court. The system of recording seems to be complete and the photo system is fairly complete and effective. The books seem to be in good shape with the exception of certain districts that are in bad condition. However, we understand that application has been made to WPA to renew these books, and if this is accomplished, it will be the saving of a good deal of money to the county.

Records of papers filed in the clerk's office are kept indefinitely by the clerk, and it is necessary, of course, that the clerk should have a proper place to file important records. Therefore, it behooves the county to look forward to the time—probably in the near future—when additional space will have to be provided for the clerk in which to keep his files.

In the present time some of the older records and files are kept in a room in the subbasement adjoining the boiler room. This room is cluttered up with various articles other than court records. Being situated so close to the boiler room, it is quite natural that this room is dirty. Records are allowed to stay loose on tables and racks, and this condition should be corrected immediately.

The county owns a vacant lot adjoining the courthouse, and it is only a question of time when some addition will have to be made to allow more room for an overcrowded condition.

We believe that a sound-proof reading room should be provided to proof-read deeds.

By reason of the fact that two counties were annexed to Fulton, the records in the clerk's office have naturally increased. According to the record, the clerk's office paid into the county treasury last year $24,000.

During the first nine months of 1937, the amount of recording in this office was as follows:

Warranty deeds 11,162

Mortgages and loans 6,437

Cancellations 5,151

Personal property 49,695

The manner in which litigants' funds are handled is set out elsewhere in these presentations.

JUDGE JESSE M. WOOD'S COURT.

We had occasion to investigate Judge Wood's court and the office of the solicitor, John McClelland. We find that the solicitor has a complete record of cases coming into that court. The record shows that last year 8,622 were tried. Of this number 6,256 were found guilty, 351 not guilty, 815 cases were placed on the dead dock, 28 cases not pressed, and 971 defendants forfeited their bonds.

Records show that the increase in automobile accidents, resulting in a great loss of life and property in this community, demands a more rigid enforcement of our statute books pertaining to the operation of automobiles.

The number of cases tried in this court has increased 25 per cent during the last year, and the revenue collected in fines has increased 50 per cent, which reflects the improved economic condition of the county.

While this court is not operated with any idea of making money, it is the natural result in the trial of misdemeanor cases, where fines are assessed against first offenders, that the court should receive considerable revenue from the payment of the county. This financial showing is in direct contrast to the deficit of the municipal court, as shown elsewhere in these presentations.

SUPERIOR COURTS.

It appears to this body that a system of creating strictly a criminal section and a civil section of the court, with three judges in the criminal section and three in the civil section, would be a sound thing to do, and the other three judges handling strictly civil cases, with one of their number as chief judge of that division, would materially save up court costs and save the county considerable money.

We believe that a larger number of county convicts could be sentenced by the judges direct to the state prisons, thereby saving the county large sums of money in feeding and clothing the prisoners.

It is the thought of this body that some system should be inaugurated working towards the rehabilitation of convicts just leaving prison. These unfortunate people are thrown on the community, when they finish their sentences, without a job or money, and are left to fend for themselves. They are in a position to value the services of the individual employees, but it is our observation that the county personnel is not above the average, and we see no justification for the payment of salaries above the average paid for similar work in private business.

If some type of work could be given these people when they are first released, they could gradually regain their self-respect, and they could gradually work themselves back into worthwhile jobs. It is entirely possible and probable that the county could operate something in the nature of a factory for the purpose of making clothes and shoes for prisoners, or put some of these people on farms to raise food, or, probably engage them in other lines of work that would be beneficial to the county. These ex-convicts should be paid a reasonable wage until they could find employment in other channels.

ATLANTA POLICE DEPARTMENT.

Under Chief Hornsby, this department has 363 regular men who work in the police, detective and traffic department, as well as in the office and station house. This department is in need of 25 additional men.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

A general inspection of roads and bridges was made by the city. The roads were inspected after rains and, as a whole, were in good condition. It is to be noted that Piedmont road from the city limits is almost constantly in need of repairs.

The bridge over the Seaboard railroad on Moore's Mill road is too narrow and should be rebuilt to accommodate two-way traffic. The following bridges show the lack of proper maintenance and should be repaired: Abbots bridge, Rodgers bridge, Little's bridge.

Attention is called to the need of stronger guard rails to withstand the impact of present-day traffic.

GRADY HOSPITAL.

We wish to congratulate the community for having such an able man as Mr. J. B. Franklin to be superintendent of this institution.

For the year 1937, Fulton county gave $33,600 and the city of Atlanta donated something like $500,000. The total amount enabled the institution to run after a fashion, but three-fourths of the institution needs painting badly. There are 130 nurses to attend the patients, but the need calls for 165. There are 100 nurses to attend the colored patients, but the need calls for 120. The 130 nurses for white patients are crowded in accommodations for only 90. The 100 nurses for colored patients are crowded in accommodations for only 50. It is practically impossible to do this ordinary acted in good faith in adding one additional employee to his force.

We made a thorough investigation of the various records, filing system, etc., of this office, and find all records seem to be in excellent condition.

Most of the work in this particular office is of stenographic nature or typing. Therefore, the larger number of employees are women, and they seem to be very efficient.

The records show that the ordinary office paid into the county during last year approximately $24,000.

ALMSHOUSE AND INDUSTRIAL FARM.

This body thoroughly inspected the white and colored divisions of the almshouse, and they were found to be in a clean, sanitary condition. The inmates all seemed to be well cared for and happy and both institutions were found to be very capably managed and administered. We recommend that the repairs to the basement ceiling in the white division be done immediately before cold weather. We understand this has been recommended by former grand juries but nothing done.

The Industrial Farm for Colored Boys was found to be in good condition. The boys are inspected at work and their behavior indicated that they were being trained to do practical jobs—principally in farm work. They were well clothed and the management is to be commended in the condition of its buildings and grounds.

The Industrial School for White Boys was also carefully inspected. We saw samples of their military training and discipline and found that the white boys are receiving a combination of theoretical and practical education which should be very helpful in turning out good citizens. We recommend installing electric refrigeration in the Industrial Farm for White Boys. They built an electrical refrigeration unit in the colored division with very little expense and it has proven to be a very satisfactory and practical operation. We believe this can be done the same way for the white division of the Industrial Farms.

COUNTY CONVICT CAMPS.

The camps of this county are not only well situated but are kept in excellent condition. All buildings and equipment are in good shape. The bunk houses are clean and bedding good. The kitchens are spotlessly clean, the food good, properly prepared and plentiful. The prisoners are in good condition and under strict discipline. The guards are alert and firm, but courteous. There appears no favoritism among the prisoners, nor did we find any special privileges accorded to one and not to another.

The county is building up an excellent dairy of pure-bred milk cattle and now milk is furnished to all the camps. Vast quantities of corn, vegetables, peas, hay and fodder are raised by the prisoners and is almost enough to feed prisoners and stock through the entire year. Thousands of pounds of pork are killed each year and is used as fresh meat for the prisoners.

The sick are well cared for in the camp hospital located at the Bellwood camp, supervised by county physicians. There should be arrangement for isolated hospitalization for venereal and tuberculosis patients. The entire county convict system is efficiently supervised and operated.

COUNTY POLICE DEPARTMENT.

This department has about 75 men under the able guidance of Chief Mathieson and every part of the county, some 800 square miles, is regularly patrolled. The men are high type and properly instructed in their duties. The efficiency of their work has been greatly increased by the use of radio which is operated in conjunction with that of the Atlanta police department, and any man can be called instantly, no matter where he may be.

ATLANTA POLICE DEPARTMENT.

Under Chief Hornsby, this department has 363 regular men who work in the police, detective and traffic department, as well as in the office and station house. This department is in need of 25 additional men.

ADDITIONAL FUNDS REQUIRED BY CITY, COUNCILMEN TOLD

Back Pension Judgment
Will Require $80,000;
Total Runs $101,000.

An additional $101,000 will be needed by the city to meet its obligations this year, City Comptroller B. Graham West told members of the finance committee yesterday afternoon.

West said the city is liable for $80,000 by virtue of a back pension suit against it by retired city firemen, and that $11,000 additional will be needed for the police and fire pension funds before the end of the year. Grady hospital must have $10,000 more for supplies, he asserted.

Judgment Rendered.
The comptroller said the superior court has already rendered a judgment against the city in the fireman's pension suit, involving about $80,000, and the city will have to pay if the supreme court upholds the lower court's decision. Atlanta has attacked the legality of the entire pension system in the supreme court. A decision from this body is expected soon.

Matters involving heavy expenditures, up before the committee yesterday, were referred to the 1938 finance committee. These included the North avenue underpass at Glenn Iris drive, which the construction department estimated would cost $119,000. Other estimates are the work will cost only $40,000.

Sewing Room Fund.
The city turned down the request of the WPA for aid in maintaining the WPA sewing room project here. L. B. Barrett, WPA official, said $3,000 a month would be needed to maintain it. Harold Sheats, assistant county attorney, said the county was willing to cooperate with the city in financing the sewing project.

The budget commission was requested to find funds to purchase traffic lights for West Peachtree and Peachtree place and Bankhead and Chestnut street crossings. Councilman John A. White's proposal to place a light at Peachtree and Ponce de Leon was referred to the police committee.

ANNOUNCING THE 1938

LINCOLN-ZEPHYR V-12

The modern "twelve" at medium price

IN THE ANNUAL fashionable parade of model after model, improvements, changes, refinements are to be observed on every hand. But how seldom the whole car departs from traditional ways.

The LINCOLN-ZEPHYR V-12 during 1936 and 1937 did—and still does. The new LINCOLN-ZEPHYR for 1938 does even more. Truly it can be said: It breaks with tradition again!

Graceful streamlines that gave the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR a distinction of its own in two years previous are even more pronounced this year. If the bold front of this new car reminds you of the nose of some great air-liner, it is made that way for the same basic reason. Principles of functional design, rather than mere style, dictate the car's modern form. Thus the low and horizontal radiator grille, aside from its beauty, increases cooling efficiency.

This new car breaks with the usual, too, in its modern power-plant. The V-type 12-cylinder engine, used and approved by more than 45,000 enthusiastic LINCOLN-ZEPHYR owners during 1936 and 1937, has been refined to give an even smoother performance. And new-type valve lifters, with oil cushions, bring even quieter operation. . . . Developing 110 horsepower, the car moves through traffic gently, sweeps across country or up-hill with ease. And it gives 14 to 18 miles to the gallon—twelve thrifty cylinders!

The basic construction of this car is a definite break with tradition. In closed types, body and frame are not two separate units, but one unit, a steel framework, all members welded together. To this rigid framework, steel top, sides and flooring are welded. You ride surrounded by steel—and view road and landscape through wide windshield and windows of safety glass.

The new LINCOLN-ZEPHYR is bigger inside, bigger outside. The wheelbase is lengthened to 125 inches. Seats are like easy chairs in height and in comfort. Great comfort, too, results from the placing of car weight and passenger weight toward the middle. Prove this on your favorite back road!

This year, a new Convertible Sedan and a new Convertible Coupe bring to six the number of LINCOLN-ZEPHYR body types from which you may choose. These new types confirm the judgment of those who have felt that the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR's clean lines and sweep of flexible power would be particularly adapted to convertible models.

Drive the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR today for its style and performance. Drive it because it will endure mechanically. Drive it for the pleasure it brings back to motoring. This modern "twelve" at medium price is still the only car of its kind at any price! Lincoln Motor Company, builders of the Lincoln and Lincoln-Zephyr V-12.

Prices begin at $1295 delivered at Detroit factory. State and Federal taxes extra. The Sedan illustrated is $1395 delivered at Detroit factory, white side-wall tires included.

The College Girl Clamors for Sophisticated Simplicity in Frocks

LEAGUE OF NATIONS REPORTS ON NUTRITION PROBLEMS.

If you are interested in nutrition and its relation to health and progress, you could find no better source of information than the final report of the mixed committee of the League of Nations on nutrition. This report, which has just been published, covers every phase of nutrition. Of special interest to the average person is the report on principles of nutrition, special diet needs for different classes and age groups, and the relation of income to nutrition.

While the problems of nutrition necessarily vary from one part of the world to another, the ultimate goal must be everywhere the same: to insure that all sections of the population obtain an adequate diet. These nutritional needs will be met by a variety of different food combinations, but the principles of correct nutrition remain the same.

The report defines an adequate diet as one which supplies the necessary substances for growth and repair (protein); sufficient calories in fuel foods to meet the energy needs of the body (fats, sugars, starches, proteins); plus the essential food elements (vitamins and minerals) which are required in relatively small quantities.

A useful division of foods into two classes is made in the report: The protective foods and the energy-bearing foods. In the protective group are minerals, vitamins and "good" protein. In the highly protective foods, the following are included: Milk, cheese, eggs, liver, fat fish, butter, cod liver oil, green vegetables, raw fruits, fruit juices. "Good" protein is that supplied by milk, eggs, and glandular animal tissue, and it was estimated that about 50 per cent of the protein in a diet should be of animal origin.

Their nutritional needs are the same.

The non-protective foods, chiefly valuable as energy-providers, include legumes, cereals, bread (white), rice (polished), nuts, sugar, honey, jam, margarine, and vegetable oils.

An insufficient amount of energy-bearing foods, calories, causes loss of weight. A lack of protective foods causes various "deficiency" diseases which may develop in spite of an abundant calorie intake.

Statistical evidence shows that food habits, at least in many parts of western communities, have gradually been tending to change in the right direction. These communities are, on the whole, now consuming, in addition to the indispensable foods of high energy value, more milk and dairy products, more fruit and more vegetables than a generation ago. This movement toward better nutrition has largely resulted from the unconscious and instinctive groping of men for a better and more abundant life.

The movement toward nutrition has made considerable progress, but it has not gone nearly far enough.

RUN-AROUND FROCK DISTINGUISHED FOR ITS LINES.

The sophisticated simplicity of this tailored frock made of feather-weight wool and worn by Dixie Rae is preferred by college girls and smart young business women. Cut on simple lines, easy to achieve, it is designed to center interest on the fabric and the smart lines of the dress. Particularly new are these style details—the elongated collar points, long, well-fitting sleeves and high placed pockets. Interesting, too, is the skirt which fits snugly over the hips to flare at the knees in two unpressed, inverted pleats that make for grace and action freedom. A brown leather belt and amusing cord and tassel necktie, contribute a smart color contrast.

Barbara Bell Pattern 1356 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 3 1-8 yards of 54-inch material.

THE JOY OF A REAL DINING ROOM.

These bright young couples who live in tiny new apartments don't know what they're missing in not having gracious leisurely dining rooms. We're all "agin" the idea of doing without a real dining room for that should be the jolliest room on the place. Because it takes a real dining room to collect a family in.

So we advocate doing without a lot of things before dispensing with the idea of having a dining room with good dining room furniture. After all, it will get use enough through the years to warrant the investment.

A friend of ours who is just now graduating to a house with a dining room is all of a flutter over newspaper ads of dining room furniture she's been collecting. "But I can't decide on the style I want. What would you suggest?"

This ads all heralded the grand values available in furniture around town, but one appealed particularly... a Queen Anne suite of walnut, solidly made and yet graceful. With it we suggested a plain dusty blue rug of nubby textured quality, walls in soft ivory, draperies of printed linen, predominantly copper in tone. Then accessories and accents in copper. "I would be unexpected but lovely to use copper with Queen Anne things."

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for the writer's bulletin, "Ideas for Dining Room." You'll find other useful ideas there.

Popular Members of Atlanta's Sub-Deb Set Prepare To Make Merry on Halloween

Miss Dorothy Giddings, at the left, and Miss Julia Fleet donned gay Halloween costumes for their charming pose in a setting typical of the season of hobgoblins and witches. While these popular sub-debs express their joy in the anticipation of a merry Halloween, a weird spook stands guard and a black cat arches his back to the sky, but the harvest moon smiles knowingly as if in league with Dorothy and Julia. The former is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Glenville Giddings and is a member of the junior class at Washington Seminary. The latter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Fleet, is a junior at North Fulton High school.

PRONOUNCE WELL TO BE ADMIRER AS CHARMING, DELIGHTFUL TALKER

DO MENU TERMS EMBARRASS YOU?

Do Menu Terms Embarrass You?

Your pronunciation—is it a credit to you? Can you read a menu with ease, refer to names and events in the news, confident that every syllable is correct?

Or do you sometimes catch that half-smile on a friend's face that says you've blundered?

That's a warning to check your speech at once, to pounce quickly on errors that give a bad impression.

Perhaps, when you dine with a new beau, you order "hor-DOOVZ." Hors d'oeuvres you pronounce oDERvr. Do you ask for the Table de hote? Prefer FILET MINYon? Lettuce with ROCKfute dressing? TAH-bilode is correct for table d'hote, FEELAY MEENyon for Filet Mignon, RokeFORR or ROKEfert for Roquefort.

Even worse are boners in plain English, such as scrambling CHOCKolit pie into CHAWKIut pie—SIRup into SURup—licorice into LICKerish. LICKeris is correct.

Away with such blunders. Groom your speech so your friends will be proud of you instead of apologetic about you.

Pick up your newspaper. Read aloud. Do you say RIVERA, AMURRikan, STALin, the Fas-SISH? Repeat correctly: Reeve-AYrah for Riviera, AMERICAN, STAHleen, FahSHEEstee for Fascist.

Do you say a movie advertisement announces your favorite star as the heir-o-NEER? Advertisement, FAYverit, HEHR-o-in are correct.

Do you trip over such mouth-fillers as dictators, ignoramuses, ultimatum? Say dickTAYtors, ultimatus? ignorAYmuses, ultimAYtums.

Our 40-page booklet, WORDS MOST OFTEN MISPRONOUNCED, makes it simple to check your errors, helps you to cultivate quickly the clear, charming ing speech that rates with educated people.

Send 15c for our booklet, WORDS MOST OFTEN MISPRONOUNCED, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Thursday.—I went to see the play, "Susan and God," last night and I can recommend it to anyone who wants an entertaining evening with a few moments of real emotion to point up the lighter vein. Miss Crothers makes gentle fun perhaps of a certain religious movement, but the real barbs of her wit are directed against a certain type of woman who fools herself successfully even if she does not fool her friends.

There are few of us who do not know Susans and Barries and Blossoms. Some of the lines are quite priceless. The play is well cast and very well acted and only the last curtain left me with a rather let-down feeling.

Could Susan really be honest with herself or anyone else? Why is it that people like Charlotte, who really are the ones with character and who face life with courage, so rarely charm the people they love? The Susans of the world seem to have it all over the Charlottes, which is not a very good lesson for the young generation!

We were a little slow in coming out of the theater last night and found the rain made it difficult to get a taxicab. Everyone in the world, it seemed to me, offered to come to our assistance. Each new person found it a little harder to return to us with the desired vehicle. With my usual impatience I dragged my poor companion through the rain toward Broadway and insisted that I could get a taxi there. Finally I took pity on her reluctance to be dragged any further, and walked through the Hotel Astor and waited under the canopy on the 44th street side until the doorman really did get us a conveyance.

I always want to be moving and feel sure that I can get what I want more quickly than anyone else. Which is perfectly all right if you are alone, but not so good if you are subjecting someone else to your vagaries.

It is still raining this morning and I am apprehensive that many of our lovely colored leaves will have been torn off their branches when we reach Hyde Park this afternoon. When I was young I got a great deal of amusement in shuffling my feet through the leaves which had been raked up under the trees. I loved an autumn bonfire of leaves and bits of branches which the wind had blown down. Alas, that is another thing which I do not enjoy so much now, for it means to me the end of summer with its freedom.

I am lunching today with the Young Men's Board of Trade and they have kindly submitted to me some questions, as I felt a little inadequate to make a speech which would be of interest to this particular group. I am rather doubtful if anyone outside of a government official could answer some of the questions submitted. Fortunately, they are all matters of opinion and I suppose we, all of us, have a right to have an opinion whether it is right or wrong!

Vandy Heavily Favored To Beat Tech at Grant Field Today

Bulldogs in Fighting Mood But Vols Favorites at Knoxville

Today is the day, from all I can gather, when the Morrison Magicians are going to ask the Georgia Tech team to step up on the stage and help them out with a trick.

RAY MORRISON

"I was practicing watching runs," the startled official will say.

Mr. Harry Frnka will pull a half dollar from behind the ear of the head linesman and this will be used to spin for the kick-off choice.

Then comes the main act. The football rabbit which the Commodores pulled out of the L. S. U. hat last week, when L. S. U. was out there aiding with a trick, has a part of the populace believing the Vanderbilt to have been recruited from the Equity lists of magicians. The winner of today's game? Well, how can you beat a team which has a tackle who hatches out touchdowns?

THE MAGIC MIXTURE.

Ray Morrison has all the necessary ingredients with which to make football magic.

He has a big, mobile, intelligent line and a set or so of those fast, rabbit-type backs. That's all any coach needs to make heap big magic.

He arrives in town favored to win by three touchdowns this afternoon. The folks around town can't forget the Tech team against Auburn. It was slowed down to a figurative walk and wasn't tackling or running with any power.

Hence, the Vanderbilt people will have to give odds or points or both if they wish to get their money down. The Commodores are regarded as bad medicine around this section of the Empire State of the South. In fact, a lot of folks would prefer a horn or so of this elixir of sulfanilamide.

LOTS OF ANGLES.

My ears, which have seemed quite long and furry on many a Saturday's evening when the results were all in, likely will attain that status again along about time for today's vespers. There are so many angles.

Did you have any idea it was possible to figure the Vanderbilt team out as a vastly overrated outfit?

Well, it is possible. The Vanderbilt team was keyed to the highest peak against L. S. U. It scored an early touchdown and then kept up an offense which outplayed L. S. U. for three and a half quarters. Yet the team couldn't score against an L. S. U. team when every man on the Vanderbilt team was clicking. No passes, no running plays scored. It requires a bizarre trick to get Vanderbilt's touchdown.

That doesn't sound as if the Commodores were a first-rate outfit.

Yes, they are. That is merely an illustration of how many angles one may figure into this dizzy whirl called football.

The Commodores have a good line and a set of good, fast backs; good pass receivers and good kicking. They couldn't miss being a good football team.

Tech might win this one by an inspired game with every break of the luck. A game such as Tech fired at Duke might win this game.

Yet, it must be recalled Tech's defense in that game was

By JACK TROY.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 29.—Georgia's Bulldogs are pictured here as frothing at the mouth, trying for revenge and barely able to restrain themselves from leaping posthaste at the foe's throat before even game time comes tomorrow afternoon at Shields-Watkins field.

That's one side of the picture. On the other side, there is a sympathetic view that perforce brings tears to the eyes.

"Major Neyland fears Tennessee not ready for the important clash. Injuries hurt squad."

All one hears is Georgia this and Georgia that. "Coach Harry Mehre to show off two potential All-America players in Bill Hartman, fullback, and Quinton Lumpkin, center."

VOLS FAVORED.

Unfortunately for the build-up the suave gentleman in the street who is not unwilling to name the odds, makes Tennessee the ruling favorite and happily gives Georgia seven points, and he may make the odds even longer tomorrow, he says.

It may be, on the other hand, that the build-up is unwittingly deserved, but forget all about Tennessee not being ready and the squad being riddled by injuries.

Major Bob Neyland's starting lineup will include a majority of the seasoned players and he intends to stick to his plan of playing two complete teams. The players who have been injured all week and feared out of the game will be ready for the kick-off.

Georgia players are in no emotional lather. Outwardly, they appear very calm about it all. But beneath this stoic exterior there is a definite resolve to get even for the events of last year, that is but natural.

CAN'T FORGET.

No team is going to forget a 46-0 licking from one season to the next. And almost emphatically no Georgia team.

There is no team on the schedule Georgia had rather beat, except, maybe, Tech. The boys feel that way about it.

And after being in their company on the trip up and watching them go through their final training paces this afternoon, there is but one sane thing to do. And that is to string along with the boys.

The Georgia Bulldogs are going to beat Tennessee tomorrow afternoon if the breaks don't go against them.

Tennessee looked fairly good against Duke but observers still believe that Wallace Wade had not been ultra-conservative that day, the Blue Devils would have won handily instead of being held to a scoreless tie. Alabama defeated Tennessee going away, as they say.

Georgia, of course, opens the conference schedule tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, central time. Coach Mehre's team has been beaten only once, it was by one point and by a team, Holy Cross, that remains one of the relatively few unbeaten and untied teams in the nation.

TOWNS TO START.

Coach Mehre announced a change in the Georgia lineup this afternoon. Forest (Spec) Towns, champion hurdler, will start at left end in place of Otis Maffett. Tom Haygood, as originally announced, will open the game in place of John (Stooge) Davis at left tackle. It means that Towns and Haygood are starting their first game this season.

The rest of the Georgia line will include Pete Tinsley and Walter Troutman at guards; Bill Badgett, a local boy, at one tackle; Marvin

Vanderbilt Forewall Is Still Uncrossed

Commodores Fear Tech Aerial Game; Plan To Use Vaunted Running Attack.

By FREDDIE RUSSELL.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 29.—The undefeated, untied Vanderbilt team which meets Georgia Tech Saturday afternoon has an enviable record to protect. Picked anywhere from seventh to eleventh in the conference, the Commodores not only have won five straight games but its forewall has not been scored on.

The seven strong men who played the full 60 minutes in conquering L. S. U. have repulsed every scoring effort of Kentucky, Chicago, Southwestern, L. S. U. and S. M. U. Southwestern tallied one touchdown on a long pass and L. S. U. scored on an overhead toss after a pass interference penalty had set the ball on the 12-yard line.

Vanderbilt has dominated the offensive play in every game. Racking up a total of 78 first downs against 32 for the opposition, Morrison's men have run a total of 427 plays against the opposition's 310. They go against Tech confident that the line will stack up with the Jacket forewall, but fearing that Tech's aerial attack may prove disastrous. Vanderbilt is expected to depend upon its running game in view of Tech's plan to use a five-man line.

The squad left Nashville at 10 o'clock Friday night on a train carrying more than 125 supporters. Another special carrying the Commodore band, leaves Nashville at 6 a. m. Saturday and will arrive in Atlanta at noon. More than 1,000 Nashvillians will witness the game.

The Vanderbilt squad will remain on its Pullmans until shortly before the game. It is a Morrison custom to hide out the team before an important battle.

Griffin High Beats North Fulton, 24-0

GRIFFIN, Ga., Oct. 29.—Griffin High kept her record clear to night by winning from North Fulton, 24 to 0. Coach McLendon used his second team a considerable part of the game.

It was Griffin's fifth victory of the season and she has not lost a game. Both Griffin High and Spalding High, which are in the N. G. I. C., have won five games each and neither have lost a game. Griffin fans are beginning to predict that the N. G. I. C. championship will come here and see a post-season game between Griffin and Spalding to decide championship. Griffin has four more games and Spalding three.

SOUTH CAROLINA DEFEATS CITADEL

Gamecocks Win Annual Struggle at Orangeburg Fairgrounds, 21-6.

ORANGEBURG, S. C., Oct. 29. (UP)—South Carolina today defeated Citadel, 21-6, in a wild game in which one touchdown was allowed because an excited spectator tackled a ball carrier.

Jack Lyon, of South Carolina, broke into the clear on his own 45-yard line early in the fourth period. A spectator tackled Lyon and the officials ruled a touchdown for South Carolina. A general fist fight followed and it required police 10 minutes to clear the field.

The second South Carolina score also was a fight. A South Carolina punt bounded into Stubbs, of Citadel, and across his goal line where Lit Durham, of South Carolina, fell on it for a touchdown.

South Carolina made its first touchdown on the fourth play of the game when Gene Robinson returned a punt 66 yards. Citadel made its touchdown late in the game with aid of a 15-yard penalty on South Carolina which advanced the ball to the latter's one-yard stripe.

Cowbell To Arrive For Game Today

An old cowbell will arrive in Atlanta this morning from Sylvia, N. C. Some years ago E. F. Cavaleri, of Atlanta, offered the bell as a trophy to the winner of the Tech-Vanderbilt game. In 1935 a Tech freshman "swiped" the bell and it was lost until yesterday when the freshman, now out of school, wrote his conscience pained him and he was mailing back the bell.

By RALPH MCGILL.

Riding the crest of an unbroken wave of victories, the Vanderbilt football team will steam into Atlanta this morning for the 21st engagement with the Georgia Tech eleven.

Kick-off time at Grant field is 2 o'clock.

Atlanta expects another crowd of 20,000 or more to see this game.

In 20 games the Commodores have amassed 15 victories and played in two ties with the Engineers from the old Tech flats. The Commodore band is learning to "oot." "California, here we come."

EXPECT NO 16.

Today the Commodores are expected to make the victory total what will be for them a sweet sixteen. The odds favor the Commodores to win by at least two touchdowns as a crippled and twice defeated Georgia Tech eleven tries to muster its forces for a comeback effort which will at least give them a fighting chance.

Captain Fletcher Sims is expected to start despite a lame back. Fullback Buck Murphy will not start. Fullback Red Collins is in poor condition and Regular Guard Alan Wilcox may not play at all. Harry Appleby is limping.

LEGS UNCERTAIN.

Bill Jordan, the greatest end in Dixie, will be back at end. His hospital legs are a question mark. The big fellow has just returned from a session in the hospital which lasted almost a week. He plays today with a wire mark to protect his face from another blow. He suffered a concussion in scrimmage before the Auburn game.

Vanderbilt starts the seven linemen who played all the L. S. U. game. It is one of the heaviest lines in the south and Tech will be badly outweighed.

The Commodores depend on Bert Marshall, one of the several Texans on the Nashville team. He is a sophomore but already is rated one of the outstanding backs in Dixie. With him step Jimmy Huggins, Dutch Reinschmidt, Sam Agee, Ford and a half-dozen other good backs.

FRIGHT, HOPE.

Coach Morrison, of the Commodores, was trying in vain to work up a bit of fright about today's game. Out at the flats there was hope, which springs eternal behind the human brisket. There wasn't much hope but there was hope.

Some 500 fans from Nashville arrived this morning and will be on hand, with other Vanderbilt people from this section, to cheer on the team which they believe is headed for the Rose Bowl.

Gordon Tramples Marion Institute

MARION, Ala., Oct. 29.—The Gordon Military College Bulldogs outplayed the Marion Institute Cadets here this afternoon to give them their first defeat of the season by a score of 29 to 12. The Cadets scored first in the opening quarter when McGill returned a Gordon punt 80 yards for a touchdown behind perfect interference.

Red Robertson scored the other Marion touchdown early in the fourth period on a 30-yard end run. The punting of Gant, who averaged close to 40 yards and kicked them out all the afternoon in coffin corner, coupled with the running of McIlvaine and McAfee and all-around play of Spice featured for the Gordon Bulldogs.

HURRICANE HOUSE

By Bruce Henry

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. Gil Ferris, a young engineer, inherits a rambling Spanish type house in Miami and a comfortable income when his brother Morton, a returning adventurer, dies. The legacy is really unwelcome, and Gil is more concerned with seeing April Conway once again. He had loved April, and two years ago had proposed to her in New York, but she refused him, and accompanied by her Aunt Morinda, followed Morton south. Gil phones April now, wanting to call on her, but she hangs up on him at his newly-acquired residence. He sees at once that she is still suffering from the shock of Morton's death. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

hoarsely, trying to jerk his eyes away. "It's all right," she assured him, soothingly. "They were a little, what is it... tight?" "But..." Gil protested. Fortuna came toward him swaying, her face white, luminous in the half-light. "Don't talk," she commanded. Her hand touched his arm, drew him slowly, compellingly toward her room. Gil felt the woman's magnetism steal into his body. She locked the door behind them. A single lamp, glowing in one corner, sent flashes of brilliance through her hair. It looked like a halo around her olive face. "Gilbert," his name was a caress on her lips. "I've been waiting for you..." She pulled his face closer as she returned kisses for kisses. Suddenly, shame, anger, humiliation all merged and left his mind cold, shaken. He thrust her away with such force that she fell upon the bed. "Forget it, you idiot," he admonished himself, and went stomping angrily through the cloister. It was quiet, and he wondered idly where Fortuna, Giggles and Boorsma might be. Surely they hadn't broken up the party so soon, not if Boorsma lived true to type. Probably back in the kitchen. They weren't. The house was still. He frowned, then shrugged his drooping shoulders. None of his affair. Truth was, he felt relieved that the others weren't about. He didn't want to dissemble, pretend to like Boorsma and his adle-pated partner. Fortuna he wouldn't mind talking to. She rested him, in a way. Even if suspicion about her was growing, nursed by April's mistrust, he still was attracted to the woman. He climbed the stairs, turned into his room and snapped on the light. Then he gasped, hit the switch and backed out hurriedly. The nerve, the consummate nerve of them! He seized the knob again. Out they'd go, right now. "Gilbert," he whispered. Fortuna from the doorway of the next room. "I've been worried about you." He released the knob, took a step closer. She looked fresh as a new-plucked orchid, as though she had slept for hours. And the negligee she wore was sheer as a butterfly's wing. It clung to her fully developed body lovingly. "Boorsma and..." Gil began, "Now," the woman demanded, "you care to tell me what your friend April is up to?" "Gil seized her wrist. "Stop!" he grated. Then quite suddenly it came to him that Fortuna had been Morton's wife. "You're right," he admitted, dully. "Sorry if the way April acts has distressed you. I'll see you're not bothered again." The woman smiled. "That is better. Now, while we talk of these matters, what do you intend doing about... about me?" "About the legacy, you mean?" Gil laughed mirthlessly. "You can have it, and welcome. I'm going back to New York." "I don't mean that," she murmured, coming nearer. Gil chuckled without mirth, inwardly. He had a grip on himself now. She was a clever woman, but she had picked a poor victim this time. "Am I good to look at?" she demanded, childishly. He turned the key, opened the door. The sting of her palm on his cheek made him blink, then he laughed. "I hate you!" she saged. "Get out! Get out of my house!" "Gladly. You and that animal Boorsma, together with his little playmate, can keep the whole mess." She drew a sharp breath, her eyes opened wide, then she wilted, would have dropped to the floor if Gil had not caught her. "No, no!" she sobbed, "I didn't mean it. I didn't! Forgive me. I am tired, so tired. Please say you forgive me." He supported her with one arm while he proffered a handkerchief. He hated crying females, but somehow there was an appealing charm about the so confident Fortuna being reduced to tears. "There, there," he whispered awkwardly. "Let's forget it. I apologize." "Kiss me," she begged, raising her face. He complied, touching her lips briefly. "Good night," he said, turning her toward her door. "We'll talk tomorrow." "Good night," she sniffed. "Good night, dear, dear, Gilbert." An amazing woman, he thought, as her door closed. One moment fearsome as a wildcat, the next as soft and yielding as a kitten. Volatile to the point of explosiveness. Shaking his head, he prepared to go to a spare room in the south wing. Had to get that shower and to bed. He stumbled on a throw rug in the hallway, and snapped his lighter to locate the electric button. Found it, pressed the button. Boorsma, clad in one of Gil's own dressing robes, stood flattened against the wall next to the door that led to Morton's room. And in his big hand there gleamed a black automatic. "Somehow the thought of a stinging, cold shower had little appeal to Gil that morning. What he needed was something to help him calm down and make his brain quit going a la whirrig. He looked out his bedroom window. Somewhere on the grounds there was a swimming pool, he had been told. Yes, he caught a glint of water. He stole out of the house silently. He couldn't face Fortuna and Boorsma, and that empty-headed girl Webster yet. Not after last night. The morning wind jerked at his bathing robe as he jogged toward the pool. He slipped off the robe as he ran, and without hesitancy plunged into the mirror-surfaced liquid. It was salt water, sharp in his eyes and mouth. Good! It would brace him. He came up, broke the surface and set out with strong, steady strokes to do a dozen lengths. "What was it April had said? 'I'll swim hard enough and fast enough, you don't have to think.' She was right. He raced through the water, pausing at each end of the rectangle only to turn and lash out again. When the dozen lengths were completed, he padded slowly to the center of the pool, rolled on his back and rested, looking up at the fringe of tree tops that patterned the warm sky overhead. Had he made a complete idiot of himself last night, with Boorsma? After all, the man had no right to go prowling around at that hour with a loaded gun. The excuse about hearing suspicious noises was pretty thin, too. Obviously he had either been eavesdropping, or he was trying to get into Morton's room. Still, Gil was glad he hadn't poked the big ox on the jaw, as first impulse had dictated. That wouldn't have helped, and he might, possibly, have gotten shot up. Anyway, it had ended not too badly, with Boorsma returning to his room profusely apologetic. "A good man to watch," Gil mused, wrily to himself. Continued Monday. AUNT HET

By ROBERT GUILLIN.

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK. Soon after I reached Southampton, I boarded a train for Tunbridge Wells. At least that is the city for which I was bound. In England all railroads seem to lead to London. To get to Tunbridge Wells, I first went northward to London, then changed to a train going southward. Each railway coach contains from nine to 14 compartments, and each compartment will seat from eight to 12 people. Each coach has about twice as many doors as there are compartments. When passengers get out at a station, they open their compartment and step out on the platform. Conductors seldom collect tickets on English railway trains. The custom is for passengers to give up their tickets after they reach the city to which they are going. They file through a gateway in the station, and hand the tickets to a man on duty there. English railway coaches are not nearly so large as those of Canada and the United States. The coal cars are even smaller than the railway coach. I have seen long rows of coal cars which look like wagons on tracks. An English coal car is about 15 feet long.

Almost all railway lines in England keep to the same level from one end to the other. There is little curving around hills. When the tracks lead to a hill, they go right through it—tunnels have been cut through hundreds of hills in over England. This helps explain the speed at which trains travel. A mile a minute is common, and certain trains go much faster than that. After reaching Tunbridge Wells, I went to "Percy House," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Pape. It is the custom in England to give names to private dwellings. Friends of mine in Erith, Kent, call their homes "Ousley House." In London one of my cousins and his family live in "Tudor Lodge." Mr. Pape has illustrated many books, both for children and for grown-ups. From time to time, he has made pictures for our "Corner," and he promises to make more for us in the future.
